5 killed, 13-year-old injured in shooting in Las Vegas, suspect dies by suicide

sFive people were killed, and a 13-year-old was critically injured when a man went on a shooting spree at two apartments in Las Vegas on Monday night. The suspect, identified by police as Eric Adams, 47, killed himself on Tuesday morning with his gun when officers confronted him. In a statement, police said that officers acting on tips found Adams on Tuesday morning at a local business. Armed with a gun, when confronted, the man fled into the backyard of a nearby residence. Police officers gave Eric Adams commands to "drop the firearm", but he ignored those and "died by suicide", the police statement added. The 47-year-old is suspected of shooting and killing four women and one man late on Monday at two North Las Vegas apartments located in the same complex. A 13-year-old girl was also shot and is in critical condition. One of the women victims was in her early 40s, and the other in her late 50s. The other two women were both in their mid-20s and the man was in his early 20s, The Associated Press reported, citing the police. The victims weren't immediately identified.

The police called the shooting an "isolated incident" and did not provide details on the possible motive behind it, news agency Reuters reported.

UN tells Israel it will suspend Gaza aid without improved security Washington Senior UN officials have warned Israel that they will suspend the world body's aid operations across Gaza unless Israel acts urgently to better protect humanitarian workers, two UN officials said Tuesday. The ultimatum is the latest in a series of UN steps demanding Israel do more to safeguard aid operations from strikes by its forces and to curb growing lawlessness hindering humanitarian workers.

A UN letter sent to Israeli officials this month said Israel must provide UN workers with a way to communicate directly with Israeli forces on the ground in Gaza, among other steps, the officials said. They spoke on condition of anonymity to discuss ongoing negotiations with Israeli officials. The UN officials said there has been no final decision on suspending operations across Gaza and that talks with Israelis were ongoing. Israeli military officials did not respond to requests for comment. Israel has previously acknowledged some military strikes on humanitarian workers, including an April attack that killed seven workers with the World Central Kitchen, and has denied allegations of others.

ting security concerns, the UN World Food Program has already suspended aid delivery from a U.S.-built pier designed to bring food and other emergency supplies to Palestinians who are facing starvation amid the eightmonth war between Israel and Hamas in Gaza.UN and other aid officials have complained for months that they have no way to communicate quickly and directly with Israeli forces on the ground, in contrast with the usual procedures — known as "deconfliction" — employed in conflict zones globally to protect aid workers from attack by combatants. In its letter to Israeli officials, the UN cited communication and protective equipment for aid workers as among the commitments that it wanted Israel to make good on for its aid operations to continue in Gaza overall, the two UN officials say.

Kenya's Parliament on fire as protests against finance bill escalate

NAIROBI.Part of Kenya's parliament building was on fire Tuesday as thousands of protesters against a new finance bill entered and legislators fled, in the most direct assault on the government in decades

Journalists saw at least three bodies outside the complex where police had opened fire.

The protesters had demanded that legislators vote against the controversial bill imposing new taxes on a country where frustrations over the high cost of living have simmered for years. The protesters outmaneuvered police to enter parliament shortly after legislators voted to pass the bill.Lawmakers fled through a tunnel, but protesters allowed opposition legislators who voted against the bill to walk out of the besieged building.

The office of the Nairobi governor, a member of the ruling party, also was on fire. The office is located near parliament. Police water cannons were being used to extinguish the fire. Protesters could be heard shouting, "We're coming for every politician." Protesters scatter as Kenya police spray water canon at them during a protest over proposed tax hikes in a finance bill in downtown Nairobi.Protesters scatter as Kenya police spray water canon at them during a protest over proposed tax hikes in a finance bill in downtown Nairobi.APPolice officers also fired live ammunition and threw tear-gas canisters at protesters who sought treatment at a medical tent set up at a church near the parliament complex. The Kenya Human Rights Commission shared a video of officers shooting at protesters and said they would be held to account.

Two people died in similar protests last week.

The Kenya Law Society President Faith Odhiambo said Tuesday that 50 Kenyans, including her personal assistant, had been "abducted" by people believed to be police officers. Some of those missing included those who were vocal in the demonstrations and were taken away from their homes, workplaces and public spaces ahead of Tuesday's protests, according to civil society groups. Police officials did not immediately return calls seeking comment. Parliament Speaker Moses Wetangula had directed the inspector general of police to provide information on the whereabouts of those the opposition said were abducted. President William Ruto was outside the capital attending an African Union retreat. On Sunday, he said he was proud of the young people who had come out to exercise their democratic duty and said he would engage the youth on their

Brazil's Supreme Court decriminalises possession of marijuana for personal use

Court on Tuesday voted to decriminalize possession of marijuana for personal use, making the nation one of Latin America's last to do so, in a move that could reduce its massive prison population. With final votes cast on Tuesday, a majority of the justices on the 11-person court have voted in favor of decriminalization since deliberations began in 2015. The justices must still determine the maximum quantity of marijuana that would be characterized as being for personal use and when the ruling will enter into effect. That is expected to finish as early as Wednesday. All the justices who have voted in favor said decriminalization should be restricted to possession of marijuana in amounts suitable for personal use. Selling drugs will remain illegal.In 2006, Brazil's Congress approved a law that sought to punish individuals caught carrying small amounts of drugs, including marijuana, with with alternative penalties such as community service. Experts say the law was too vague and didn't establish a specific quantity to help law enforcement and judges differentiate personal use to arrest people carrying small quantities of drugs on trafficking charges and Brazil's prison population continued to swell. The majority of pre-trial detainees and those convicted of drug trafficking in Brazil are first-time offenders, who carried small amounts of illicit substance with them, caught in routine police operations, unarmed and with no evidence of any relationship with organized crime," said Ilona Szab³, president of Igarapé Institute, a think tank focusing on public security. Congress has responded to the top court's ongoing deliberations by separately advancing a proposal to tighten drug legislation, which would complicate the legal picture surrounding marijuana possession. In April, the Senate approved a constitutional amendment criminalising possession of any quantity of illicit substance. The lower house's constitutional committee approved the proposal on June 12, and it will need to pass through at least one other committee before going to a floor vote. If lawmakers pass such a measure, the legislation would take precedence over the top on constitutional grounds. Speaking to reporters in the capital Brasilia, the Senate's president, Rodrigo Pacheco, said it isn't the Supreme Court's place to issue a decision on the matter. "There is an appropriate path for this discussion to move forward and that is the legislative process," he said. "It is something that, obviously, arouses broad discussion and it is a subject of preoccupation for Congress."Last year, a Brazilian court authorised some patients to grow cannabis for medical treatment after the health regulator in 2019 approved guidelines for the sale of medicinal caught with even small amounts of drugs are regularly convicted on trafficking charges and locked up in overcrowded jails, where they are forced to join prison gangs. "Today, trafficking is the main vector for imprisonment in Brazil," said Cristiano Maronna, director of JUSTA, a civil society group focusing on the justice system.Brazil ranks behind the US and China in countries with the highest prison populations, according to the World Prison Brief, a database tracking such figures.Some 852,000 individuals were deprived of liberty in Brazil as of December 2023, according to official

4 arrested on suspicion of trespassing at Rishi Sunak's country home in England

At least four people were arrested for allegedly trespassing after entering the grounds of UK Prime Minister Rishi Sunak's country estate in northern England.

London, Four men were arrested Tuesday on suspicion of trespassing after entering the grounds of Prime Minister Rishi Sunak's country estate in northern England, police said. North Yorkshire police said the group was detained just after noon and arrested on suspicion of aggravated trespass. A group called Youth Demand posted video showing a man in boots step into Sunak's pond, where he pretended to defecate. The group said in a statement chock-full of a crude four-letter word for human waste that it was a "parting gift" to the prime minister. It said the stool used in the stunt was made of latex so it could be retrieved and prevent environmental damage. Sunak was in London at the time for the state visit by the Japanese emperor and

The incident comes just over a week before the U.K.'s general election that will determine if Sunak remains in power. Polls and pundits have predicted the Labour Party to take control after 14 years of Conservative rule. The police officer who confronted the group asked the providentified by the group asked the man identified by the group as "Oliver" what his intentions were, according to video of the incident."I think our intentions are carried out," he replied outh Demand said it is calling for for a two-way arms embargo on Israel and for the next U.K.

Kenya anti-tax protests turn violent, 5 shot dead as mob storms Parliament

Nairobi. Kenyan President William Ruto said on Tuesday security was his "utmost priority" after protests against a bill to raise taxes descended into violence, with police firing on demonstrators trying to storm the legislature, killing at least five. In chaotic scenes in the capital Nairobi, protesters overwhelmed police and chased them away in an attempt to enter the parliament compound, with Citizen TV later showing damage from inside the building, which had been partially set ablaze.

Protests and clashes also took place in several other cities and towns across Kenya, with many calling for Ruto to quit as well as voicing their opposition to the tax rises. In a televised address to the nation, Ruto said the tax debate had been "hijacked by dangerous people"."It is not in order, or even conceivable, that criminals pretending to be peaceful protesters can reign terror against the people...," he said, pledging a swift response to Tuesday's "treasonous events".Police in Nairobi opened fire after tear gas and water cannon failed to disperse the crowds. They eventually managed to drive protesters from the parliament building and lawmakers were evacuated through an underground tunnel, local media said.Later on Tuesday, Defence Minister Aden Duale said the army had been deployed to help the police deal with a "security emergency" which had resulted in the "destruction and breaching of critical bodies of at least five protesters outside parliament. The Kenya Medical Association said that at least five people had been shot dead while treating the injured, and that 31 people had been injured, with 13 shot with live bullets and four with rubber bullets. The association called on authorities to establish safe medical corridors to protect medical staff and ambulances.CAUGHT BETWEEN COMPETING DEMANDS

Ruto won an election almost two years ago on a platform of championing Kenya's working poor, but has been caught between the competing demands of lenders such as the International Monetary Fund, which is urging the government to cut deficits to obtain more funding, and a hardpressed population.envans have been struggling to cope with several economic shocks caused by the lingering impact of the COVID-19 pandemic, the war in Ukraine, two consecutive years of drought and depreciation of the currency. The finance bill aims to raise an additional $2.7 billion in taxes as part of an effort to lighten Kenya's heavy debt load, with interest payments alone consuming 37 per cent of annual revenue.In Washington, the White House said the United States was closely monitoring the situation in Nairobi and urging calm.

Julian Assange pleads guilty in US court on remote island, walks out a free man

Saipan WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange pleaded guilty on Wednesday to a single count of conspiring to obtain and disclose classified US national defence information and was allowed to walk free, ending years of legal battles. Assange, 52, entered the plea in a US District Court hearing in Saipan on the Northern Mariana Islands, a UScontrolled territory chosen due to his refusal to travel to the mainland United States and its proximity to his native Australia.As a beaming Assange walked out of the courtroom, he was greeted by a round of applause. He left in a vehicle after giving a quick wave to his supporters. Watch: As part of his plea deal with US prosecutors,

Assange will be required to destroy information provided to WikiLeaks. He is expected to receive a sentence of five years and two months, with credit for the time he spent in a British prison fighting extradition."Guilty to the information," Assange said in court, later joking to the judge that his satisfaction "depends on the outcome of the hearing." Assange, who turns 53 on July 3, was wished an early happy birthday by Chief Judge Ramona Manglona."I understand your birthday is next week. I hope you will start your new life in a positive manner," she told Assange, according to the Washington Post. The plea deal avoids a lengthy trial and potential prison sentence for Assange, who has long been wanted by the United States for the 2010 publication of hundreds of thousands of classified documents through WikiLeaks. He was released earlier this week from a high-security British prison where he had been held for five years. His wife, Stella, called him a "free man" and thanked supporters who campaigned for his release. Following the hearing, Assange is expected to return to Australia, US prosecutors said. WikiLeaks confirmed his return on social media platform X, calling the plea deal "unnecessary."The Australian government welcomed the

Seoul A North Korean ballistic missile test

Wednesday likely ended in failure, South Korea's military said, days after the North protested the recent regional deployment of a US aircraft carrier for a trilateral military drill with South Korea and Japan. South Korea's Joint Chiefs of Staff said in a statement that North Korea launched a ballistic missile from its capital region around 5.30 am on Wednesday. It said the missile was launched toward the North's eastern waters, but the launch was suspected to have ended in failure. The Joint Chiefs of Staff said South Korean and US intelligence authorities are analyzing details of the North Korean launch. But it didn't immediately explain why it believes the launch failed. Japan's Defense Ministry said earlier Wednesday that it also detected a suspected ballistic missile launch by North Korea.South

Korea's Yonhap news agency reported the North Korean missile flew about 250 kilometers (155 miles). Yonhap cited an unidentified South Korean military source as saying North Korea was believed to have tested a hypersonic missile.Japanese media reported the North Korean projectile fell outside Japan's exclusive economic zone.The North's reported launch also came hours after South Korea said North Korea floated huge balloons likely carrying trash across the border for a second consecutive day.North Korea has conducted a series of trash-carrying balloon launches toward South Korea since late May in what it calls a tit-for-tat response to South Korean activists flying political leaflets via their own balloons. On June 9, South Korea briefly restarted propaganda broadcasts from its border loudspeakers for the first time in years in response. South Korea's military said Monday said it was ready to turn on its loudspeakers again. The USS Theodore Roosevelt arrived in South Korea on Saturday and South Korean President Yoon Suk Yeol boarded the carrier on Tuesday -- the first sitting South Korean president to board a US aircraft carrier since 1994. Yoon told American and South Korean troops on the carrier that their countries' alliance is the world's greatest and can defeat any enemy. He said the US carrier is to leave Wednesday for the South Korea-US-Japan drill, dubbed "Freedom Edge." The training is aimed at sharpening the countries' combined response in various areas of operation, including air, sea and cyberspace. North Korea's vice defense minister, Kim Kang II, on Monday called the US aircraft carrier's deployment "reckless" and "dangerous." North Korea has previously called major US-South Korean drills invasion rehearsals and reacted with missile tests. Seoul officials said the upcoming South Korea-US-Japan training is meant to strengthen the three countries' response capabilities against North Korea's evolving nuclear threats at a time when the North is advancing its military partnerships with

Pyongyang last week, North Korean leader Kim Jong Un and Russian President Vladimir Putin signed a deal requiring each country to provide aid if attacked and vowed to boost other cooperation. Observers say the accord represents the strongest connection between the two countries since the end of the Cold War. The United States and its partners believe North Korea has been providing Russia with much-needed conventional arms for its war in Ukraine in return for military and economic assistanceNorth Korea's reported missile launch is its first weapons demonstrations since Kim Jong Un on May 30 supervised the firing of nuclear-capable multiple rocket launchers to simulate a preemptive attack on South Korea. The drill came days after North Korea's attempt to put its second spy satellite into orbit ended in failure, with its rocket carrying that satellite exploding in mid-air soon after liftoff.

Since 2022, North Korea has sharply increased the pace of weapons tests to increase its nuclear attack capabilities to cope with what it calls an deepening US military threat. Foreign experts say North Korea eventually aims to use its larger nuclear arsenal to wrest greater concessions from the US when diplomacy resumes.

China Becomes First Country to Retrieve Rocks From the Moon's Far Side

This achievement follows India's Chandrayaan-3 mission in August 2023, which successfully landed near the lunar South Pole region

RNS I Beijing: China achieved a significant milestone in space exploration on Tuesday by bringing back a capsule filled with lunar soil from the moon's far side. This marks the latest success in China's ambitious plans to explore the moon and other parts of the solar system. Mission Success

The Change-6 lander, part of the China National Space Administration's mission, retrieved the sample after a 53day mission. The lunar probe module returned to Earth, successfully collecting the firstever samples from the moon's unexplored far side, a major advancement for China's space program.

Precise Landing

The return capsule landed precisely at 2:07 pm (Beijing Time) in the designated area in Siziwang Banner, located in north China's Inner Mongolia Autonomous Region. The China National Space Administration (CNSA) declared the mission a complete success. Scientific Significance

"Change-6 is the first mission in human history to return samples from the far side of the moon," said Long Xiao, a planetary geologist at China University of Geosciences. He described it as a major event for scientists worldwide and a cause for celebration for all humanity.

International Implications

This achievement has sparked hopes for international lunar sample exchanges, highlighting the potential for China's robotic missions to the moon and Mars to advance scientific understanding of the solar system. However, some view this milestone as part of a 21st-century space race with geopolitical implications.

China had previously landed on the far side of the moon in 2019. The far side, which faces away from Earth, poses technical challenges due to its distance, giant craters, and few flat surfaces.

Sample Analysis

The reentry module will be airlifted to Beijing, where the lunar samples will be transferred to a team of scientists for storage, analysis, and study, according to the CNSA. The Change-6 probe is expected to have returned with up to 2 kilograms of moon dust and rocks from the lunar far side, which will be analyzed by Chinese researchers before being opened to international scientists. Mission Details

The Change lunar exploration probe is named after the Chinese mythical moon goddess. Launched on May 3, the Change-6 mission consists of an orbiter, a returner, a lander, and an ascender. Supported by the Queqiao-2 relay satellite, the lander-ascender combination landed in the South Pole-Aitken Basin on the moon's far side on June 2 and carried out sampling work. The ascender took off from the moon on June 4 with samples and completed rendezvous and docking with the orbiter-returner combination on June 6, transferring the samples to the returner. Lunar Orbit and Return

The orbiter-returner combination spent 13 days in lunar orbit, awaiting the right opportunity to return to Earth.

Future Prospects

"The Change-6 mission represents a significant milestone in the history of human lunar exploration and will contribute to a more comprehensive understanding of lunar evolution," said Yang Wei, a researcher at the Institute of Geology and Geophysics of the Chinese Academy of Sciences. He added that new samples will inevitably lead to new discoveries. The fascination with the moon is deeply rooted in Chinese culture, symbolized by the myth of Change, a lady who journeyed to and resided on the moon. Now, Chinese scientists eagerly anticipate contributing to lunar science, Yang told Xinhua.

Court sends Kejriwal to CBI custody for 3 days in a money laundering case

New Delhi: Delhi Chief Minister Arvind Kejriwal was arrested by the Central Bureau of Investigation (CBI) from Tihar Jail on Tuesday. The CBI is set to produce him before a trial court on Wednesday, potentially leading to his formal arrest by the central agency, sources reported.

This development comes just a day before the Supreme Court is scheduled to hear Kejriwal's plea challenging a Delhi High Court order that paused the bail granted to him by a lower court.

On Monday, the CBI questioned Kejriwal in Tihar Jail regarding the liquor policy case and recorded his statement.

Following this, the CBI filed an application for a production warrant, which was subsequently issued by a special court.

Kejriwal is expected to be presented before the trial court at 10 am on Wednesday, likely before the Supreme Court hearing begins. Since Kejriwal is already in judicial custody in an Enforcement Directorate case, his formal arrest can occur in court. Should the CBI secure his custody, Kejriwal will remain in Tihar Jail on Wednesday even if the Supreme Court overturns the Delhi High Court's stay on his bail.

Meanwhile, AAP MP San-Singh commented on the situation, stating, "Arvind Kejriwal is likely jriwal by preparing a false to get bail from the Supreme Court. Before this, the BJP government at the center, along with the CBI, has conspired to arrest Kecase against him." He further alleged a conspiracy to prevent Kejriwal from obtaining bail ahead of the Supreme Court hearing.

CBI Chief To Poll Body Head, Rahul Gandhi Now Has A Say In Key Appointments

Rahul Gandhi today took over as Leader of the Opposition in Lok Sabha -- a position that was vacant for the past 10 years

New Delhi: As the Leader of the Opposition in Lok Sabha, Congress leader Rahul Gandhi will participate in the appointment process for key officials such as the CBI director, the Chief Election Commissioners, National Human Rights Commission chairperson and the Chief Vigilance Commissioner.

Mr Gandhi today took over as Leader of the Opposition in the lower House -- a position that was vacant for the past 10 years because no Opposition party met the minimum strength criterion for the post. In the past two Lok Sabhas, Congress's Mallikarjun Kharge and Adhir Ranian Chowdhury were leaders of the Congress in the House.On the selection panels for most of these appointments, the government has a 2-1 advantage, as it comprises the Prime Minister and a Union Minister. But as Leader of the Opposition, Mr Gandhi will

The 54-year-old leader is the third member of the Gandhi family to become the Leader of the Opposition. His father and former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi was Leader of the Opposition fron 1989-90 when the VP Singh government was in power. His mother and former UPA chairperson Sonia Gandhi occupied the post from 1999-2004 when the Atal Bihari Vajpayee government was in power.As a Leader of the Opposition, Mr Gandhi will enjoy the rank of a cabinet minister and get an office and staff in the Parliament building.In his first House appearance in his new role, Mr Gandhi switched to a white kurta-pajama combo, dissing the white t-shirt-trouser look he is usually seen in. In a rare moment of bonhomie between the Opposition and the treasury benches, Mr Gandhi walked up to Mr Birla and congratulated him. He also shook Prime Minister Narendra Modi's hand and the two leaders, along with Parliamentary Affairs Minister Kiren Rijiju, escorted the Speaker to his chair.

Addressing the House, Mr Gandhi congratulated Mr Birla on his election, but also sent across a message from the "The Opposition would like to assist you in Opposition. He said the Lok Sabha Speaker doing your work. We would like the House to function. It is very important that cooperation happens on the basis of trust. It is very important that the voice of the Opposition is allowed to be represented in this House.'

'The question is not how efficiently the House is run. The question is how much of India's voice is being allowed to be heard. So the idea that you can run the House efficiently by silencing the voice of the Opposition is a non-democratic idea. And this election has shown that the people of India expect the Opposition to defend the Constitution," he said."We are confident that by allowing the Opposition to speak, you will do your duty of defending the Constitution," Mr Gandhi said.

The Congress leader was elected from two seats this time -- Rae Bareli in Uttar Pradesh and Wayanad in Kerala. He has vacated the Kerala seat, and his sister and Congress colleague Priyanka Gandhi Vadra will contest the bypoll that follows.

Mr Gandhi's return to the House and his elevation as the Leader of the Opposition is also significant against the backdrop of his disqualification as a Lok Sabha MP last year following a conviction in a defamation case. He returned to the House after the Supreme Court paused the conviction

Akhilesh Yadav's sharp message to Om Birla: 'Hope suspensions don't take place'

New Delhi:In a terse message to Lok Sabha Speaker Om Birla, Samajwadi Party (SP) leader

Akhilesh Yadav on Wednesday hoped that actions like suspension and expulsion of MPs don't take place in the new Lok Sabha. Speaking in the Lok Sabha, Akhilesh said actions like suspension of MPs hurt the dignity of

"We expect that no public representative's voice will be stifled, nor will action like expulsion take place again. Your control is on the Opposition, but it should be on the ruling side too," the former Uttar Pradesh Chief Minister said.

The SP president said he also hoped that the Speaker would be impartial towards the Opposition, adding that "impartiality is a great responsibility of this great post"."The House should function on your with all your just decisions... I hope that you will respect the opposition as much as you respect the ruling dispensation," he said." You're sitting here as the chief justice of the court of democracy."

The eight-day session of the 18th Lok Sabha commenced on Tuesday, with Prime Minister Narendra Modi and all the other MPs taking oath as members of the Lower House of Parliament. Akhilesh Yadav and Rahul Gandhi were seen sitting in the front row of the Lok Sabha on Tuesday, unlike the last Parliament session where the Congress leader sat on the second row. The SP president accorded special attention to Awadhesh Prasad, who won the prized Faizabad seat in the election, where Ayodhya's Ram Mandir is located. He even kept him close

'Allow us to speak': Leader of Opposition Rahul Gandhi to Speaker Om Birla

New Delhi:Leader of the Opposition (LoP) in the Lok Sabha Rahul Gandhi called on newly elected Speaker Om Birla to ensure that the Opposition is allowed to voice the concerns of the people in the House, stating that running the House without those opposed to the government's views is "non-democratic". Gandhi, who was appointed as LoP on Tuesday, congratulated Birla on his election to the post of Lok Sabha Speaker for a second term and expressed hope that the Speaker would fulfill his duty by allowing the Opposition to speak.

We are confident that by allowing the Opposition to speak, by allowing us to represent the people of India, you will do your duty of defending the Constitution of India," Gandhi said in his maiden address as Lok

Sabha LoP."The idea that you can run the House efficiently by silencing the voice of the Opposition is non-democratic. This election has shown that the people of India expect the Opposition to defend the Constitution," the Congress leader said.Talking about the importance of cooperation and trust in the functioning of the House, the Gandhi scion said the Opposition was more than willing to cooperate with the Speaker."The Opposition would like to assist you in doing your work. We would like the House to function often and well. It is very important that cooperation happens on the basis of trust. It is very important that the voice of the Opposition is allowed to be represented in this House," he said. Several opposition leaders, including Samajwadi Party chief and Gandhi's INDIA bloc ally Akhilesh Yadav, also had similar messages for Birla."We believe you will move forward without discrimination and as the speaker, you will give equal opportunity and respect to every party. Impartiality is a great responsibility of this great post," Yadav said.Birla, the NDA nominee, was elected as the Lok Sabha Speaker on Wednesday after a motion moved by Prime Minister Narendra Modi was adopted through voice votes. The Opposition, which had proposed Congress MP Kodikunnil Suresh as its candidate, did not press for votes to the motion.In his address, Prime Minister Narendra Modi praised Birla's work as a parliamentarian, saying it should be an inspiration for new Lok Sabha members.

Trinamool to back K Suresh for Lok Sabha Speaker after 'no consult

New Delhi: The Trinamool Congress (TMC) on Tuesday announced that they would support Congress leader K Suresh, who is the Opposition-led INDIA bloc's candidate for the election for the Speaker post in Lok Sabha. The Mamata Banerjeeled side came around a day after the ruling party of Bengal claimed they were not "consulted" by the Congress before fielding K Suresh as the pick.

The Trinamool Congress's support follows a 20-minute phone call between Congress leader Rahul Gandhi and Mamata

Banerjee. The Congress MP, who was chosen as the Leader of Opposition in Lok Sabha on Monday, also spoke to TMC MP Abhishek Banerjee in person in Parliament. The TMC, which termed K Suresh's candidature as a "unilateral" decision by the Congress, reiterated to the grand old party that all INDIA bloc-related decisions must be made by keeping all members in loop.On Tuesday night, a meeting took place at Congress President Mallikarjun Kharge's residence with Derek O' Brien and Kalyan Banerjee representing the TMC. That was followed by an internal meeting of the TMC this morning, wherein Derek O' Brien, Kalyan Banerjee, Sudip Bandhopadhyay, and Abhishek Banerjee met at the Old Parliament building in Delhi.

The rare election for the Lok Sabha Speaker post will see a contest between BJP-led NDA's Om Birla, and K Suresh - a Dalit leader and an eight-time MP. The last time an election for this post took place was in 1976 during the Emergency period. The situation arose after a consensus between the Opposition and the NDA broke down as senior BJP leaders refused to accept the INDIA bloc's condition that the Deputy Speaker post be given to them. The Opposition decided to field K Suresh as its pick for the Speaker's post after an attempt to tackle the crisis at Defence Minister Rajnath Singh's office failed and led to Congress's KC Venugopal and DMK's TR Baalu walking out.

Arvind Kejriwal Arrested By CBI In Court, Drops Bail Plea In Supreme Court

Arvind Kejriwal was arrested over money laundering allegations while framing the Delhi liquor policy for 2021-22, which was scrapped after the Lieutenant Governor raised red flags.

New Delhi: Arvind Kejriwal has been arrested by the CBI - inside Delhi's Rouse Avenue Court - in the alleged liquor policy case, and then, inside a tumultuous hour, withdrew a Supreme Court petition challenging a stay on grant of bail after his arrest in March - in the same case - by the Enforcement Directorate. The top court petition was withdrawn - the ED offered no objection - citing a desire to launch a more substantial appeal against the High Court's decision to stay the Rouse Avenue Court's bail order. After the arrest the CBI sought five-day custody.

"I Told CBI 3 Points...": Kejriwal To The Court In the Rouse Avenue Court this morning, Mr Kejriwal's lawyers argued that the agency's move to arrest the AAP boss at this point showed it had acted "in a most biased manner". The reference was to the fact the CBI had already quizzed him in connection with this case - for nine hours in April last year.Mr Kejriwal had then been questioned as a witness in the case. Today he addressed the court directly and recounted what he told the CBI when asked why the liquo policy in question was framed."I told them (the CBI) there were three points. First - increase revenue. Second - reduce crowds to handle law and order. Third - opening of liquor shops in the right proportion (i.e., equal distribution across the city). I had given instructions to Manish Sisodia (his former deputy, who, in February last year, was the first to be arrested in this case) to keep these three things in mind in the policy."Mr Kejriwal's legal team criticised the CBI for moving to arrest him at this point."It is a poor citizen Vs might of the State. This case is pending since August 2022. I was called as a witness... I appeared and, for nine hours, I assisted. Not a single notice (from the CBI) since then. How did they shift from a witness to an accused... it is a long distance to cover," they argued.Mr Kejriwal also asked for this hearing to be deferred by 24 hours so he could study the CBI's case.

The federal agency also pointed out it had no obligation to announce the start of an investigation. "Suppose there is an inquiry... I don't have to tell (Mr Kejriwal)... Who I have to tell is to the court - that I need custody.

There is no mandate I have to tell the other side about my desire to investigate."Following Mr Kejriwal's arrest in court, his party posted a sharp message on 'Today when the BJP felt Delhi's son, Arvind Kejriwal, might get bail from the Supreme Court, they again hatched a conspiracy - to get him arrested by CBI in a fake case. But every conspiracy of the BJP will be answered (and the) truth will win in the end," the party said in Hindi.Following the arrest the CBI also asked for five-day custody of Mr Kejriwal.

Kejriwal In Rouse Avenue, High, And Supreme Court

The Delhi Chief Minister's fortunes since the Rouse Avenue Court gave him regular bail last week has been significant. On Saturday, hours before his release from Tihar Jail, the ED moved the High Court, arguing the lower court's "perverse" and "completely flawed" bail order ought not to stand.

DID the Swiss-mediated Burgenstock peace conference collapse because the organisers did not study how delicate peace negotiations are conducted? Did the conference fail because Russia was not invited?In the past, the 1993 Oslo Accords temporarily halted Israel-Palestinian wars. Similarly, the 1998 Good Friday Agreement brought peace between Britain and the Irish Republican Army. The Oslo process was started in 1992-93 by Terje Larsen, a Norwegian sociologist, and Yossi Beilin, a member of Israel's Labour Party government that had come to power in 1992. This had the backing of Israeli leaders and Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) chief Yasser Arafat.Since the Israeli law banned contacts with the PLO, Larsen and Beilin set up a secret backchannel between two Israeli professors and three PLO leaders, including Ahmed Qurei. Their first meeting was held during January 1993 at the residence of then Norwegian Defence Minister Johan Jorgen Holst. The US Department of State archive says "strict secrecy allowed the negotiators to discuss scenarios and potential concessions without incurring domestic political costs."In May 1993, Israel decided to elevate the talks to the official level and sent then Director General of Foreign Ministry Uri Savir. In August that year, the Israeli and Palestinian chief negotiators initialled the Declaration of Principles on Interim Self-Government Arrangements (DOP) in Oslo. The formal signing ceremony was held at the White House in September, when Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and PLO chairman Arafat 'shook hands'.

Although permanent peace remained elusive, the Oslo Accords were an important milestone in West Asian peace, like the 1978 Camp David Accords, brokered by US President Jimmy Carter, between Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin, bringing peace between Egypt and Israel. Together with the DOP, the agreement also included 'Letters of Mutual Recognition', through which the PLO recognised the existence of Israel for the first time. Israel also recognised the PLO as the legitimate representative of the Palestinian people. Besides, Israel committed itself to withdrawing from parts of the Gaza Strip and the West Bank and acknowledged the Palestinian right to self-rule in those territories under a Palestinian Authority.

Similarly, Senator George Mitchell, who was designated as a 'Special Envoy' by then US President Bill Clinton, had to toil between September 1996 and April 1998 to bring in peace in Northern Ireland, ending 30 years of violence. He had to overcome hostility from the 'unionists', who wanted Northern Ireland to remain with Britain, as they felt that President Clinton had imposed mediation efforts to their detriment.

It is said that they also opposed secret talks in a foreign place away from Belfast, as they wanted to avoid the possibility of being politically ambushed away from their home base. Mitchell's tactic was his infinite patience to listen to the opposing parties whose hostility to each other was so intense that there "was very little inclination to listen to the other side, let alone compromise with them," as he told an interviewer later. The cardinal principle in all such negotiations is the secrecy of proposals put across by contending sides so that no embarrassment is caused to either of them by sending wrong signals to their constituents. The organisers should have studied an old CIA document (1992), 'Analytic Support for Peace Talks', released by its think tank, Centre for the Study of Intelligence, as a guide to sensitive peace negotiations.

True, Swiss Foreign Minister Ignazio Cassis was quoted as saying by the media at the UN that several secret plans were being considered to bring peace in Ukraine. He was also quoted by TASS in January telling the Davos conference that Russia should be invited.

The exam system needs urgent course correction

The practice of appointing members to recruitment commissions based on political connections must be ended.

THE Ministry of Education has cancelled the 2024 UGCNET (University Grants Commission-National Eligibility Test) in view of a paper leak. The case is now under the purview of the CBI, which will conduct further investigation. The ministry has also handed over the case of alleged irregularities in the conduct of the 2024 NEET-UG (National Eligibility-cum-Entrance Test-Undergraduate) to the CBI. The NEET medical entrance exam is also under the scrutiny of the Supreme Court. In this year's NEET (UG), a record-breaking 23 lakh candidates had got themselves registered.

Meanwhile, Subodh Kumar Singh has been removed from the post of Director General of the National Testing Agency (NTA) amid the controversy over the NEET-UG and UGC-NET exams. In another significant development, the government has postponed the NEET-PG.These cases of question paper leak are not isolated, but rather part of a long history of incidents. The IIT-JEE of 1997 and the All India Pre Medical Test of 2011 witnessed this menace. The phenomenon is seen in many states, regardless of which political party is in power. There is a high incidence of paper leak in India. As a result, numerous examinations have to be cancelled. According to media reports, over the past seven years, more than 70 examination papers have been illicitly disclosed in various states, resulting in adverse consequences for the professional prospects of over 1.7 crore individuals. Instances of leaked exam papers and answer keys are frequently shared on social media platforms such as WhatsApp, X (formerly Twitter) and

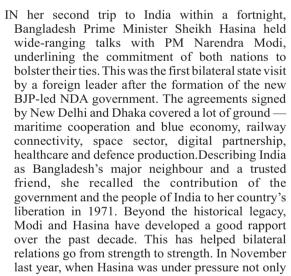

The NTA need not be scrapped; only the examination system needs to be revamped. Each year, over 10 lakh candidates participate in the Civil Services examinations, yet the Union Public Service Commission (UPSC) manages to conduct a secure examination. However, when it comes to online exams, there is a potential risk of leak due to the use of technology. The likelihood of the threat intensifying is certain to rise amid the use of artificial intelligence (AI). Given these circumstances, AI is poised to become a significant menace. If the website of the Home Ministry can be compromised, it is reasonable to question why these exams cannot be similarly vulnerable to hacking. Every exam that is scrapped not only wastes the time and money of millions of students, but also consumes taxpayers' money. The NTA is exceeding its brief by repeatedly employing a trial-and-error approach in conducting these examinations. The agency was established in 2017. However, even after seven years, the scourge of paper leak persists. The NTA must take lessons from the UPSC.

The practice of appointing members to recruitment commissions based on political connections must be ended. Additionally, the examination commission should possess its own printing press or alternatively, the digital copy should be directly transmitted through a code lock system — 15 minutes prior to the examination – to the designated examination centre. The document ought to be printed and distributed among the candidates. By employing this approach, the cost of question papers will undoubtedly be slightly higher compared to press printing, but they will be secure and impervious to leaks. It is imperative that the punishment for the paper mafia is administered promptly within a specified timeframe in a fast-track court, ideally within a month of the arrests. If any coaching institute is found to be involved, appropriate action should be taken against the individuals responsible and the institute should be shut down. The participation of external agencies facilitates unethical practices. From the initial creation of paper sets to their delivery to the examination centre, a large number of individuals are involved in the process. As a result, each person has a clearly defined responsibility within the hierarchy. Question papers undergo multiple stages involving drafting, printing and transportation before reaching the examination centres. It is imperative to prohibit the use of mobile phones by all persons involved. The majority of the examination centres are privately owned institutions, and a significant number of them do not meet the required standards. Examinations ought to be exclusively administered at government-approved facilities, with papers subject to constant surveillance and monitoring via CCTV cameras. The leak of question papers for public examinations has a significant impact on public trust, besides causing a substantial financial burden on the state exchequer. The Public Examination (Prevention of Unfair Means) Act, 2024, also known as the anti-paper leak law, has come into effect. But the notification of the Central Government regarding the Act contains a lacunae that require an urgent resolution. The new legislation mandates a minimum prison sentence of three years; it should be increased to a minimum of 10 years. The severity of the punishment should align with the seriousness of the offence. There is no provision for conducting investigations within a specified time-frame. In addition to imposing an additional prison sentence for failure to pay a fine for an offence under the Act, the provision for confiscation of the offender's property should also be included. The candidate who engages in exploiting unfair methods should be disqualified from appearing in any subsequent from the Bangladeshi Opposition but also the US ahead of the national elections, PM Modi joined her in virtually inaugurating three infrastructure projects. This had given a major fillip to Hasina's poll campaign. A key takeaway from last week's interaction was India's decision to send a technical team to Bangladesh for a mega project to conserve the Teesta river. China, which spares no effort in wooing or coercing India's neighbours, has been eyeing the estimated $1-billion project amid New Delhi's reservations. Hasina's bonhomie with India will be put to the test next month, when she is expected to travel to China. India, meanwhile, is in no mood to walk a tightrope. In a fresh assertion of its independent foreign policy, New Delhi is engaging closely with Dhaka even though the US has been critical of the Hasina-led Awami League government over alleged human rights violations and electoral irregularities.

No light at the end of the N-tunnel

ICAN and SIPRI reports paint a grim picture on the global nuclear front

THE apocalyptic nuclear weapons and a parlous global security framework were in focus this month, with two major reports being released on the same day (June 17) one by the ICAN (International Campaign to Abolish Nuclear Weapons) and the second by SIPRI (Stockholm International Peace Research Institute). Their findings are both distressing and bleak. The ICAN report reveals that the nine nuclear-weapon-capable nations (the US, UK, Russia, China, France, India, Israel, Pakistan and North Korea) collectively spent $91 billion last year in modernising and increasing their respective arsenals. Assuaging a deep-seated strategic insecurity syndrome apropos of the adversarial 'other' is the common thread for all nine nations. Predictably, the top three spenders are the US with $51.5 billion, which is more than half of the global nuclear weapon-related spending in 2023, followed by China ($11.8 billion) and Russia ($8.3 billion). ICAN Director Melissa Parke noted that the nuclear powers collectively spent $2,898 per second last year on these weapons and that these funds exceed what the World Food Programme estimates as necessary to end world hunger. She added that "a million trees could be planted for each minute of spending on nuclear weapons". The reference to the number of trees that could be planted is particularly relevant in the context of the irreversible global warming and climate change exigency that the world responds to in an effete and indifferent manner. India, which is reeling under a scorching summer and a dangerously low people-tree ratio, is among the most affected among large nations (in terms of total area and demography). This geo-physical trend may soon prove to be the most serious threat to human security globally. The recent heatwave-related deaths during the Haj pilgrimage are illustrative.

The SIPRI Yearbook 2024 is a comprehensive volume that provides an overview of developments in international security, weapons and technology, military expenditure, arms production and the arms trade as well as armed conflicts and conflict management, along with efforts to control conventional, nuclear, chemical and biological weapons. The nuclear chapter of almost 100 pages is a valuable summary of recent developments and trends in the nuclear domain over the last year. Authors Hans Kristensen and Matt Korda are to be commended for their due diligence in furrowing a tenaciously opaque domain, where facts, information, disinformation and political rhetoric abound.

The key findings of the SIPRI nuclear survey are that the number and types of nuclear weapons in development have increased, as all nine nations deepen their reliance on nuclear deterrence to safeguard what they perceive as their core national interest. The most recent example is that of the Russia-Ukraine war, where Moscow has rattled its nuclear sabre to warn the US-led NATO about redlines, and in response, both NATO and the US have stated that they will enhance their nuclear readiness across the board. The SIPRI nuclear overview indicates that in early 2024, the nuclear nine (N9) "possessed approximately 12,121 nuclear weapons, of which 9,585 were considered to be potentially operationally available. An estimated 3,904 of these warheads were deployed with operational forces, including about 2,100 that were kept in a state of high operational alert—about 100 more than the previous year."While the US and Russia still account for 88 per cent of the total global arsenal, an instructive statistic has been highlighted by SIPRI in relation to China, whose nuclear arsenal "has increased significantly from 410 warheads in January 2023 to 500 by January 2024, with expectations of continued growth". It adds that China is in the middle of a significant modernisation and expansion of its nuclear arsenal over the next decade and "some projections suggest that China could potentially deploy at least as many intercontinental ballistic missiles as either Russia or the US in that period".

While China may be pitting itself against the US, a visible increase in the deployment of Chinese nukes (from the current 24) would have significant implications for South Asian strategic stability that would be of grave import to New Delhi.During the Cold War, the nuclear missile contest was played out between the US and its allies (UK and France) and the then USSR from 1945 to 1991. After the 'scare' of the 1962 Cuban missile crisis, both sides warily moved towards a degree of credible, robust nuclear deterrence that was predicated on arms control agreements and MAD (mutually assured destruction). This geopolitical, steady-state plateau had an ironic anomaly, wherein a deep techno-strategic insecurity was assuaged by accepting MAD — and the acronym captures the apocalyptic sardonicism.

ince the Russian invasion of Ukraine in February 2022, the world has been getting divided into two competing nuclear weapon clusters: the US-led military alliance (with the UK and France) versus the Russia-China dyad having North Korea as a junior partner. The other three members of N9 — India, Pakistan and Israel — have not formally joined either cluster, though their geopolitical orientation is self-evident.

he bleakness referred to at the outset stems from the fact that since 2022, the world has drifted from reasonably robust deterrence to one of fragile fecklessness. The earlier strategic communication among the major powers and well-entrenched arms control and restraint agreements have steadily frayed. The US is going through an intense domestic socio-political churn with the possibility of a second Trump presidency. Russia remains determined to prosecute its war in Ukraine, come what may, while Chinese belligerence over its territorial claims continues to be brittle. This is a bleak augury. The ICAN and SIPRI reports illuminate this arid landscape in an objective manner but underscore the grim reality that there is no light at the end of this tunnel.

মোদী আরও সমালোচনা করেছেন যে রাহুল গান্ধী দুটি লোকসভা আসন, রায়বেরেলি এবং কেরালার ওয়ানাড থেকে প্রার্থী হচ্ছেন। "কংগ্রেস রাজপুত্র ওয়ানাড ছেড়ে রায়বেরেলিতে নির্বাচন লড়ছেন। তিনি সবাইকে বলছেন যে এই আসনটি তার মায়ের," মোদী বলেন, পরিস্থিতিটিকে এমন একটি শিশুর সাথে তুলনা করে যে তার বাবার স্কুলে পড়েছে বলে স্কুলটিকে নিজের বলে দাবি করে।

"এই পরিবারকেন্দ্রিক ব্যক্তিরা সংসদীয় আসনগুলিকে তাদের উত্তরাধিকার হিসেবে দেখছে। এমন পরিবারকেন্দ্রিক দল থেকে ঝাড়খণ্ডকে রক্ষা করতে হবে," প্রধানমন্ত্রী আরও বলেন।

बंदर क्या जाने

अद्यक का स्वाद

अनंत भाई क्या आज कछ सनाएँगे? बहत दिनों से कछ सुनाया नहीं। वैसे इस महीने आपकी जो कविता झरोखा पत्रिका में छपी है, वह बहुत अच्छी है। आप चाहें तो वही सुना दीजिए। अनंत नारायण बच्चों के कवि हैं अर्थात बाल साहित्यकार हैं। बच्चों के लिए लिखी गईं उनकी कविताएं मुझे बहुत पंसद हैं। वे अपनी कविताएं तो सुनाते ही हैं, दूसरों की बाल कविताएं भी सुनाते हैं। उनकी स्मरणशक्ति बहुत अच्छी है। मेरे साथ राजमिंण भैया भी थे। ये मेरे बड़े भाई हैं। मेरे और राजमणि के कहने पर अनंत नारायण ने यह कविता सुनाई-

चुहिया लाई चावल चीनी बिल्ली लाई आटा हरी सब्जियाँ ताता लाया धोकर उनको काटा मुर्गी पूरा मटका भरकर दूध कहीं से लाई आग जलाकर मीठी मीठी उसने खीर पकाई पूड़ी बनी, बनी तरकारी सबने मिल जुलकर खाया कामचोर कौवे का मन भी देख देख ललचाया वाह वाह खूब कविता सुनाई। पर यह कविता मेरी

नहीं है। अनंतनारायण बोला। यह एक अन्य बाल साहित्यकार की कविता है। मैं राजमणि भैया अनंत नारायण बड़ी देर तक बातें करते रहे। छटटी का दिन था। गंभीर बातें भी हुईं और हंसी मजाक वाली बातें भी। थोडी ही देर बाद अनंतनारायण की बेटी लितका चाय लाई और अपने हाथ से बनाकर स्वादिष्ट पोहा। सबने चाय पी और पोहा खाया। अनंत नारायण ने कहा लिलता अपने चाचा लोगों को कोई गीत नहीं सुनाओगी? संगीत तो तुम्हारा सबसे प्यारा विषय है। लितका सुनकर खुश हो गई। यह उसकी रूचि की बात थी। उसने कबीर का पद सुनाया

पद बड़ा था। पद सुनाते समय न केवल लितका की आंखें बंद थीं, बल्कि हम लोग भी इतने मगन होकर सुन रहे थे कि हम लोगों की भी आंखें बंद ही थीं। हम लोगों की आंखें तब खुलीं जब गीत पूरा हुआ। लगा जैसे हम लोग संगीत की धारा में बह रहे थे। बातें समाप्त कर जब कर जब चलने लगे तो अनंतनारायण बोले भाई कल विश्वविद्यालय की ओर से नहीं जाना। क्यों? मुझे विश्वविद्यालय में काम है। क्या काम है? काम कुछ नहीं वहां जो बैंक है, उससे पैसे निकालने हैं, पैसे ज्यादा हैं, पूरे पचास हजार। जरूरत ही ऐसी आ गई है। समय खराब है। इतनी रकम बैंक से निकालकर अकेले घर लाने में डर लगता है। मँडुआडीह से आगे कुछ दूर तक एकांत हो जाता है। तुम साथ रहोगे तो अच्छा रहेगा। बात सही है। मैं तुम्हारे साथ चलूंगा और तुम्हारे साथ ही वापस आऊँगा। दूसरे दिन मैं और आनंत नारायण बैंक गये। भीड़ ज्यादा थी। अनंतनारायण ने रूपये लेकर बैग में रखे। भीड़ पूरी घट गई थी। क्लर्क कागज की पुड़िया मुंह में रखकर वह बगल के साथी से बातें करने लगा। अनंतनारायण ने अपनी पासबुक मांगी। उसने ऐसे पासबुक उछालकर दी जैसे फुटबाल हो। अनंतनारायण को बुरा लगा। पासबुक पटल पर रखे या हाथ में दें। उछालकर देना तो अनुचित है। उन्होंने विश्वविद्यालय में तीस वर्ष पढ़ाया है। प्रोफेसर के सम्मानित पद से रिटायर हुए हैं। उनके साथ एक क्लर्क ऐसा व्यवहार करें, यह दुखद है। पर उन्होंने कुछ कहा नहीं। लेकिन जब् पासबुक देखी तो उसमें रूपये चढ़ाये नहीं गये थे। उन्होंने कहा साहब पासबुक में रूपये चढ़ा दीजिए। आपको रूपये मिल गये न? अब आप जाइए। पासबुक में रकम चढवानी है तो पासबुक छोड़ जाइए। कल आकर ले जाइएगा। रकम चढ जाएगी। एक बार यहां आने में सौ रूपये लगते

हैं। कल फिर इतने ही रूपये लगेंगे। सिर्फ पासबुक के लिए ही कल मुझे आना पड़ेगा। मैंने जो कह दिया सो कह दिया। बहस मत करिये। मैं बोला ये इस विश्वविद्यालय के सम्मानित प्रोफेसर रहे हैं। ये बहुत विद्वान हैं। आप इन्हें नहीं जानते। होंगे प्रोफेसर। मैं इन्हें नहीं जानता। यहां तो सब अपने को प्रोफेसर ही कहते हैं।

अनंतनारायण को भी। हम दोनों मैनेजर के पास गये। मैंने अनंतनारायण का परिचय दिया और क्लर्क की शिकायत की। मैनेजर ने कहा, क्लर्क की शिकायतें औरों ने भी की हैं। पता नहीं यह कब सभ्य बनेगा। यह कहकर वे हम लोगों के साथ क्लर्क के पास आये, आप इस समय क्या कर रहे हैं? आराम फरमा रहे हैं। नहीं नहीं पान खाकर... थकान दूर कर रहे हैं। बैंक थकान दूर करने के लिए हैं या काम करने के लिए। इस समय आप कोई काम नहीं कर रहे हैं। फिर अनंतनारायण की ओर देखकर कहा आप पासबुक बिना रकम चढाये वापस कर रहे हैं। सिर्फ पासबुक के लिए कल ये सौ रूपये फिर खर्च करेंगे। आप जानते हैं ये कौन हैं। ये विश्वविद्यालय के

प्रतिष्ठित प्रोफेसर हैं और बहुत बड़े साहित्यकार हैं। आपके सामने इनका परिचय भी दिया गया। फिर भी कुछ समझ में नहीं आया। वे आगे बोले, अदरक बड़ी उपयोगी चीज होती हैं। भोजन में भी पड़ती है और दवा के काम भी आती है। पर बंदर को दे दी जाए तो वह दांत से कुतरकर फेंक देगा। वह अदरक का गुर जानेगा ही नहीं। इसी पर कहावत है बंदर क्या जाने अदरक का स्वाद। यही हाल आपका है। आपके सामने एक महान व्यक्ति खडे हैं। पर आपमें इतनी समझ नहीं है कि आप उन्हें सम्मान दें। मैं अभी पासबुक ठीक कर देता हूँ, कहकर एक मिनट में क्लर्क ने रकम चढ़ाकर पासबुक वापस कर दी। हम दोनों को मैनेजर साहब का व्यवहार तो अच्छा लगा ही, उनका हिंदी ज्ञान देखकर भी प्रसन्नता हुई। बिकहावत का उन्होंने बहुत सही प्रयोग किया था। पासबुक लेकर हम लोग साथ साथ वापस चले

सुगुआरो कैक्टस (कार्नेजिया जाइगैंटिया) दुनिया का सबसे धीमी गति से बढ़नेवाला पौधा है। उसकी एक डाली पूरे 30 साल में तैयार होती है। सगुआरो उत्तरी अमरीका (अरिजोना) में पाया जाता है। उसकी बढ़त धीमी होते हुए भी वह 18 मीटर की ऊंचाई प्राप्त कर सकता है। इतना बड़ा होते हुए भी, इसकी अधिकांश जड़ें जमीन में कुछ ही सेंटीमीटर की गहराई में फैली होती हैं। केवल एक मुख्य जड़ जमीन में लगभग दो फुट की गहराई तक उतरता है। इस कारण सगुआरो तूफानों में आसानी से उखड़ जाता है। स्थानीय निवासी सूखे सगुआरो तने से घरों की छतें, फर्नीचर, बाड़ आदि बनाते हैं। वह एक दीर्घजीवी पौधा है, जो 200 साल तक जीवित रह सकता है। इसके फूल रात को खिलते हैं। यह रेगिस्तानी पौधा अनेक पश्-पक्षियों को सहारा देता है। इनमें शामिल है गिला कठफोड़वा, बैंगनी मार्टिन, घरेलू फिंच, गिल्डेड फ्लिकर (एक प्रकार की चिड़िया), एल्फ आउल (बौना उल्लू), इत्यादि। ये इस पौधे के लंबे तने में छेद करके उनमें रहते हैं।

Euro 2024: England top group despite grab draw, Denmark, Slovenia wait to know fate

England finished top and Slovenia also advanced to the knockout stages of Euro 2024 after an uninspiring 0-0 draw in their final Group C match on Tuesday. England had already qualified for the round of 16 and, despite another flat performance, the draw leaves them in first place in the group on five points.

Slovenia finished level on three points with Denmark, who drew 0-0 with Serbia, and though they had the same goal difference, goals scored and disciplinary record, the Danes appeared to have advanced in second place due to their UEFA ranking, going through with Slovenia, subject to confirmation. England had the best of the action in a tepid game of few real chances, with Harry Kane and Phil Foden forcing easy saves from goalkeeper Jan Oblak and Bukayo Saka having a goal ruled out in the first half for offside. England dominated possession but had few shots on target as Slovenia defended resolutely and tried to crowd out every attack from their frustrated. crowd out every attack from their frustrated

Denmark, Slovenia wait

Denmark secured a place in the knockout phase of Euro 2024 with a nervy 0-0 draw in Munich on Tuesday against Serbia who head home after coming bottom of Group C. The Danes had most possession and chances, with Christian Eriksen pulling the strings from midfield, but were unable to turn that into a goal in their third draw of the into a goal in their third draw of the tournament. They will await UEFA confirmation of whether they came second or third in the group - affecting who they face in the last 16 - depending on disciplinary points or rankings versus Slovenia. Serbia defended stoutly for long periods, but could not provide opportunities for veteran striker Aleksandar Mitrovic, who appealed Aleksandar Mitrovic who appealed unsuccessfully for a penalty several times. They came fourth in the group with two points from two draws.

Mbappe, Lewandowski score penalties as France, Poland draw at Euro 2024

DORTMUND. Kylian Mbappe scored a penalty on his return after breaking his nose but Robert Lewandowski's reply meant France and Poland drew 1-1 in their final group game at Euro 2024 on Tuesday.

The result in Dortmund, combined with Austria's 3-2 victory over the Netherlands at the same time, saw France finish second in Group D with one win and two draws.

France will now head to Duesseldorf for a last-16 tie next Monday against the runners-up in Group E, which could be Belgium, Romania, Slovakia or Ukraine."We have to appreciate what we did. We're qualified. We know when we're playing next (July 1), even if we don't know against who exactly," said France coach Didier Deschamps."We've achieved our first objective. Even if we don't have the spot we were aiming for because we are second. A new competition is about to start."

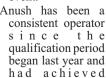

Wearing a mask to protect his injured nose, Mbappe rolled in a spot-kick to put France ahead early in the second half after Ousmane Dembele was brought down. It was Mbappe's first ever goal at a European Championship, and the first scored by a France player at this year's tournament -- their only prior goal came when Austria's Maximilian Woeber put into his own net. Yet Lewandowski, Poland's for the first time at Euro 2024 after a thigh injury, equalised from a penalty at the other end 11 minutes from time. His first kick was saved by Mike Maignan, but Lewandowski was allowed a retake as the France goalkeeper came off his line before the ball had been struck.France's result is all the more significant as they are now on the same side of the draw as Portugal, Spain and Germany, which they would have avoided by topping the group.

Often imprecise and lacking in intensity here, the 2022 World Cup runners-up will certainly need to improve on this performance, and their previous group outings, if they are to win the competition.

Copa America: Lautaro Martinez' late goal helps Argentina reach quarters with Chile win

- ▲ Argentina defeated Chile 1-0 to make to the quarters
- Lautaro scored the match-winner in the 88th minute
- ⊶Argentina play Peru in Miami in their final group gamea

New Delhi. Argentina became the first side to book passage into the Copa America quarter-finals after a late strike from Lautaro Martinez earned them a 1-0 Group A victory over Chile on Tuesday. The defending champions had to wait until the 88th minute for the winner. Giovani Lo Celso's shot was saved by Chile's Claudio Bravo after a Lionel Messi corner kick but Martinez was on hand to fire home the rebound. The goal stood after a lengthy VAR review for offside. Argentina top the group with six points after two matches, with Canada in second on three following their 1-0 win over Peru earlier on Tuesday. Chile and Peru have one point each."These matches are always like this, we have to continue in the same way, treating the matches in this way, as they are all going to be complicated," Martinez told TyC

Sports."Everything was tight, they set up lines of five at times ... but we are happy that at the end of the day we ended up taking the three points, which is what we wanted to start with."The loss extended Chile's winless streak against Argentina in the Copa America to 30 matches. Chile have won the Copa twice but have never beaten Argentina in regulation time at the tournament, getting the better of them on penalties in the final of the 2015 and 2016 editions. There was little to separate the two in a cautious opening spell at MetLife Stadium but once Argentina got going it quickly turned into a one-sided contest. Julian Alvarez and Nicolas Gonzalez tested keeper Bravo with tame efforts, while Rodrigo de Paul smashed a swerving right-foot effort just over the crossbar. Captain Messi, who played a role in both of Argentina's goals in their opening win over Canada, was once again at his brilliant best and nearly opened the scoring in the 36th minute with a powerful low drive that better the test of the scoring in the that hit the post.Argentina kept up the pressure in the second half and Alexis Mac Allister was unable to connect with a pin-point free kick from Messi to spurn a gilt-edged opportunity. Rodrigo Echeverria recorded Chile's first shot of the match in the 72nd minute, a powerful strike from distance which was kept out by Emiliano Martinez. The Argentine goalkeeper, who barely had anything to do for over an hour, found himself called into action twice more over the next few minutes, keeping out efforts from Echeverria and Marcelino Nunez.

Just as it looked like the 15-times Copa America champions would be made to rue their missed chances, substitute Martinez's goal ensured victory and a top-two spot in the group. The defending champions had the chance to kill the game off in stoppage time with a two-on-one break but Martinez fired a close range shot straight at Bravo."We have a tough group, very evenly matched, we had chances to score," Bravo said. "The next opponent is going to be tough like these two we've had."In the group's final fixtures on Saturday, Argentina play Peru in Miami while Chile take on Canada in Orlando.

New Delhi. Arshdeep Singh has revealed how Jasprit Bumrah's 'video game' type economical bowling has helped him get more wickets during the T20 World Cup 2024 as India reached the semi-final once again. Bumrah and Arshdeep have been the main pacers for India with the latter being amongst the leading wickettakers in the tournament.

Speaking after the Australia win, Arshdeep had credited Bumrah for his success and the pacer continued to sing the praises of his senior partner. In an interaction with Kuldeep Yadav, Arsheep said that things haven't been that difficult for him with Bumrah operating from the other end. The left-arm pacer feels the pressure from Bumrah forces the batters to go hard at him and play high-risk shots, which helps him get wickets."I don't think it has been that difficult for me. The way Jasprit (Bumrah) bhai is bowling, it's like it's from a video game, especially with the economy he is bowling at.""So all the pressure that is on the batters, they try to take it out on me. They try to play highrisk shots, and I end up getting wickets. So a lot of credit goes to him," said Arshdeep. Arshdeep also feels he is getting a lot of support from the rest of the bowling, who have been doing well in

And all the other bowlers we have is also helping me out. They're bowling in partnerships. One is stopping runs from one end and the other is getting wickets. So as a bowling unit, everyone is clicking well and the support is good," said Arshdeep.

Bumrah-Arshdeep connection in T20 World Cup 2024

Both Bumrah and Arshdeep have been sensational for India, especially in the powerplay overs. Bumrah produced Player Of The Match performances in the first two matches against Ireland and Pakistan, with an exceptional economyrate.Bumrah has picked up 11 wickets from 6 matches with an economy rate of 4.08. Arshdeep, on the other hand, has picked up 15 wickets from 6 matches and

SA vs AFG, T20 World Cup semis: South Africa out to improve baffling knockout record

New Delhi. South Africa will look to overcome their jittery knockout run when they take on a spirited Afghanistan side in the first semi-final of the men's T20 World Cup 2024 in Trinidad on Thursday, June 27. Having remained unbeaten so far in the tournament, the Proteas will look to end the long-standing jinx of not having won a World Cup semi-final yet. Yes, you read that right!History does not favour South Africa in one of the much-anticipated T20 World Cup clashes, which will be held at the Brian Lara Stadium in Trinidad. In 10 appearances in the knockout stages of men's World Cups, South Africa have managed to win only one match. The rare win came in the quarter-final of the 2015 World Cup when a Proteas side led by Faf du Plessis defeated Sri Lanka in Sydney.South Africa in men's World Cup knockout matches: Played - 10, Won 1, Lost 8 and Tied - 1. However, the Aiden Markram-led South Africa side doesn't seem to carry the baggage of the past in the USA and the Caribbean. Only two players from the 2015 World Cup squad feature in the current side -- David Miller and Quinton de Kock -- with both of them being serial winners of franchise-based T20 titles. South Africa have shown enough signs that they are mentally geared up to close out tight games this time around. Out of the 10 meetings in the World Cup knockout matches, South Africa have gone down thrice against Australia -- including the infamous tied game of the 1999 World Cup semifinal. The Proteas, now, have the advantage of not facing Australia, thanks to Afghanistan and India, who knocked Mitchell Marsh's side out of the competition in the Super 8 stage.

England top Euros group but disappoint again in Slovenia stalemate

COLOGNE. England manager Gareth Southgate was met with boos and beer cups thrown by his own fans despite his team topping Group C as Slovenia also progressed to the knockout stages of Euro 24 thanks to a 0-0 draw in Cologn

The Three Lions were already assured of a place in the last 16 but can expect more criticism after failing to improve on underwhelming performances in edging past Serbia and drawing with Denmark.

'I get it that they are not happy with me, that is the reality. I am not going to back away from that. I need them behind the team," Southgate said of the supporters' reaction.

"I was not going to back away from going over to thank people for coming and giving the support that they did, but I know that this is causing an issue for the group.

England will have to wait until Wednesday's final group games to find out which of the four best third-placed teams they will face in the last 16.But more questions will be asked over one of the favourites' ability to end a 58year wait for major tournament glory as a star-studded forward line was snuffed out by Slovenia."I thought we played a lot better than the other games. We couldn't just find that finish but we look forward to the next one," said England captain Harry team selection, resisting the calls to make mass changes as Conor Gallagher replaced Trent Alexander-Arnold in the only alteration from the opening two games. If the England boss was looking for a reaction by showing faith in the other 10 who have started all three matches in Germany, he was left disappointed.Slovenia are now nine games unbeaten, which included beating Portugal 2-0 in a pre-tournament friendly.Declan Rice had highlighted Benjamin Sesko as their big threat on Monday.Sesko could have been lining up alongside Rice at Arsenal next season had he not shunned interest to extend his contract at RB Leipzig. The 21-year-old shrugged off a thigh injury to start and had the first chance of the game when he tamely headed straight at Jordan Pickford four minutes in.Slovenian celebrationsIt took 20 minutes for England to pose a serious threat and only the offside flag denied them a slick opening goal. Rice picked out Phil Foden's run but the Manchester City midfielder had strayed beyond the Slovenian defence before squaring for Bukayo Saka to tap in.Southgate took action at the break as Gallagher was replaced by Kobbie Mainoo. The 19-yearold added some much needed thrust to the England midfield but they still struggled to turn dominance in possession into chances.Kane saw a header cleared by Sesko from a corner and Rice flashed a shot wide from the edge of the box. Southgate answered the call to give Cole Palmer his first minutes of the tournament in the final 20 minutes. The Chelsea midfielder, who scored 26 goals at club level this season, had England's only shot on target of the second half but failed to seriously test veteran goalkeeper Jan

Leading from the front: How Rohit Sharma has inspired a new Indian approach

Rohit Sharma is making a run for the T20 World Cup trophy with his aggressive approach. But the Indian captain is making sure that none of his teammates are left behind and making them run alongside him with the new Indian team approach.

NEW DELHI. In T20 I don't believe we need to get fifties and hundreds, what matters is the pressure you put on the bowlers. All the batters from the word go played like that and that's how we want to play as well."These were the words of a proud and happy Rohit Sharma after India outclassed Bangladesh in a Super 8 clash on June 22. The Indian skipper that day led from the front and was in All about strike-rate and impact 5th gear from the get-go. He scored 23 off 11 balls, with a strike-rate of 209.09. Fans were left wanting more from the India captain, and a few days later he delivered in the biggest match of the tournament so far. Rohit scored 92 runs against Australia off just 41 balls, and with a strike-rate of over 224.

This was the same intent he showed in the ODI World Cup, but the team couldn't keep the pace up with him during that time. Now, Rohit is making his team run alongside him in the race as India gear up for another semifinal in the T20 World Cup 2024. The remarkable change in the batting unit has been the fact that no one of the batters are trying to wait and settle in. This was seen even in the US as Indian batters followed the simple mantra, "see ball, hit ball." And the message has quite literally come from the top of the order with Rohit showing the way. But how has the rest of the side started to run along with their skipper? Paul Collingwood seemingly knows how Rohit has been able to make this change.

Speaking in the Star Sports Press Room, Collingwood said that the message in the changing room and the ones outside it from the captain has been pretty clear. The former all-rounder feels that Rohit wants his players to focus on the strike-rate and create an impact on the game."The messaging is pretty clear from Rohit Sharma. Be it the messaging in the change room, but some of the messages I have seen in the press conferences where he said it's not about personal milestones, it's about strike rate and about having an impact on the game. All these things are huge when it comes to the players having the belief that the captain and the coaches are 100 percent behind them to have an impact on the game," said Collingwood.Collingwood feels that India has had a massive change because of this as they have gone from best chasers in the game to a dangerous unit when it comes to setting targets. He further commented that India are now following what England used to do under Eoin Morgan and trying to attack from ball one.I think it's been a massive change in the Indian cricket team. They have always been one of the best chasers in T20 cricket. Virat Kohli, at the top of the order, once he knows what rhythm and tempo he is going to play, he has been one of the best chasers.""But I have seen a massive switch in the approach, especially when they are setting targets. They really want to be aggressive from the first ball. England have been doing this for 6-7 years since Eoin Morgan took over back in 2016. They have this kind of really go out and be aggressive from Ball 1 kind of stuff. It seems that they set the benchmark and other teams are trying to follow that and India is no different.

strong opinions on the film industry. And in a recent interaction with News18 Showsha, Neha makes a bold statement on how an actor is sometimes forced to play deglam roles to be taken seriously. Known for her glamorous avatars on and off-screen, Neha too has sometimes been seen shunning the sheen and taking on parts that go against her image. "No offense to anyone but I feel that to be taken seriously in this industry, you need to de-glam yourself. If you look a certain way, they'll call you a bad actor. I think it's just a stereotype," she statesAccording to Neha, actors like her often resort to a 'ploy' like this so as to change the perception that they've in the industry. "And if you aren't a very good looking person, people start seeing the acting and performance in your eyes and suddenly, the little nuances in your act are appreciated a lot more. This has become a ploy for all actors including me to de-glam so that we're taken a bit more

Ishq Vishk Rebound Box Office Day 3: Rohit Saraf, Jibraan Khan's Film Earns Close Rs 4 Crores

Ishq Vishk Rebound, directed by Nipun Avinash Dharmadhikari and part of the Ishq Vishk franchise, is having a slow start at the box office. According to Sacnilk.com, the film earned Rs 1 crore net on its opening day in India. On Sunday, i.e day 3, the movie minted over Rs 1.40 crores. While the morning shows had 7.66% attendance, afternoon shows had 22.36%, evening shows had 25.40% and night shows had around 15.35%. News18 Showsha's review of the film read, "The disappointing camera work bogs down the film's viewing experience. But fortunately, the actors manage to hold our hands until the end. Ishq Vishk Rebound is out and out Rohit Saraf's film. He is the narrator of the film. His character, Raghav, often breaks the fourth wall to talk to the audience and share his thoughts. The approach is heavily inspired from Phoebe Waller-Bridge's Emmy-award winning show Fleabag. In India, Kader Khan had done it in the 1980s with Ghar Ho Toh Aisa." Hrithik Roshan's cousin Pashmina has made her acting debut in the film. At the trailer launch, producer Ramesh Taurani had revealed she had auditioned for the role and had not revealed her background until her family name popped up when she was signing the contract. In an interview with News18, Dharmadhikari said that though the role was tough to cast, when he found Pashmina, he knew she was a perfect fit.

Pashmina was my only choice to play Samiya, nobody else came close. In that list of shortlisted names, there was only one name when it came to Samiya," the filmmaker said. "I think Pashmina's character was the toughest to cast, she plays a different character. Once you see the film you will understand.
