18 dead in Nigeria as suspected female bombers target wedding, funeral, hospital

World. At least 18 people were killed and 30 injured in a series of attacks by suspected female suicide bombers in Nigeria's northeastern Borno state on Saturday (local time), according to the head of the state's emergency management agency. The attacks, targeting a wedding, funeral, and hospital in the town of Gwoza, come amidst a long-running Islamist insurgency in the region. Borno has been theepicentre of this 15-year conflict, which has claimed thousands of lives and displaced millions. While the Nigerian military has weakened the militant groups, they continue to carry out deadly attacks on civilians and security forces.

Barkindo Saidu, head of the Borno State Emergency Management Agency, confirmed the deaths, which included children, adults, and pregnant women. He also detailed the severity of the injuries, ranging from internal organ damage to skull and limb fractures.

No group has yet claimed responsibility for the attacks. Authorities are investigating. Borno state has long been a stronghold for Boko Haram and its splinter group, Islamic State West Africa Province (ISWAP). These militant groups remain active across the vast Rishi Sunak opens up about his Hindu faith at London temple: 'Dharma guides me'

World British Prime Minister Rishi Sunak opened up about his Hindu faith, calling it a source of "inspiration and comfort" during a visit to a London temple on Saturday, accompanied by his wife, Akshata Murty.

On a stopover at the BAPS Shri Swaminarayan Mandir with days to go to the high-stakes UK elections, Sunak addressed worshippers and talked about the concept of Dharma as a guiding principle in his approach to public service." Now, I am a Hindu. And like all of you, I draw inspiration and comfort from my faith. I was proud to be sworn in as a member of parliament on the Bhagavad Gita," Sunak said.A self-proclaimed "proud Hindu", he further said, "Our faith teaches us to do our duty and not fret about the outcome as long as one does it faithfully. That is what was brought up to believe by my wonderful and loving parents, and that is how I try and live my life. And that is what I want to pass on to my daughters as they grow up. It is Dharma which guides me in my approach to public service. The UK Prime Minister also engaged in lighthearted moments with the gathering, especially after a priest remarked upon how he had "raised the bar" for children in the Hindu community as it was "no longer enough to become just a doctor, a lawyer, an accountant". "If my parents were here and you asked them, they would probably tell you that they would have preferred it if I had become a doctor or a lawyer or an accountant," Sunak quipped, drawing laughter from the

Afghan women's rights an internal issue, says Taliban government before UN-led talks

Kabul. Taliban authorities said on Saturday that demands over women's rights were "Afghanistan's issues" to solve, ahead of United Nations-led engagement talks where the exclusion of Afghan women has sparked

The Taliban governmnt, which has imposed restrictions on women since seizing power in 2021 that the UN has described as "gender apartheid", will send its first delegation to the third round of talks starting in Oatar on Sunday.Civil society representatives, including from women's rights groups, will attend meetings with the international envoys and UN officials on Tuesday, after the official talks. Rights groups have condemned the exclusion of Afghan women from the main meetings and the lack of human rights issues on the agenda.

The Taliban authorities "acknowledge the issues about women", government spokesman Zabihullah Mujahid told a news conference in Kabul on the eve of the latest talks."But these issues are Afghanistan's issues," said Mujahid, who will lead the delegation.

'We are working to find a logical path toward solutions inside Afghanistan so that, God forbid, our country doesn't again fall into conflict and discord.'

He said the Taliban government would represent all of Afghanistan at the meetings and, given their authority, should be the only Afghans at the table."If Afghans participate through several channels, it means we are still scattered, our nation is still not unified," he said.

The talks were launched by the UN in May 2023 and aim to increase international coordination on engagement with the Taliban authorities, who ousted a Western-backed government when they swept to power. The Taliban government has not been officially recognised by any state and the international community has wrestled with its approach to Afghanistan's new rulers, with women's rights issues a sticking point for many countries. Taliban authorities were not invited to the first talks in Doha last year and refused to attend the second conference, demanding that they be the sole Afghan representatives to the exclusion of invited civil society groups. That condition has been met for the third round.

Caribbean islands brace for Hurricane Beryl, to become dangerous major storm

Puerto Rico. Beryl strengthened into a hurricane Saturday as it churned toward the southeastern Caribbean, with forecasters warning it was expected to become a dangerous major storm before reaching Barbados late Sunday or early

A major hurricane is considered Category 3 or higher, with winds of at least 178 kph. On Saturday night, Beryl was a Category 1 hurricane, marking the farthest east that a hurricane formed in the tropical Atlantic in June, breaking a record set in 1933, according to Philip Klotzbach, Colorado State University hurricane researcher.A hurricane warning was issued for Barbados, St. Lucia, Grenada, and St. Vincent and the Grenadines. A tropical storm warning was posted for Martinique and Tobago and a tropical storm watch for Dominica. "It's astonishing to see a forecast for a major (Category 3+) hurricane in June anywhere in the Atlantic, let alone this far east in the deep tropics. #Beryl organising in a hurry over the warmest waters ever recorded for late June," Florida-based hurricane expert Michael Lowry posted on X.

Beryl's centre was forecast to pass about 45 kilometres south of Barbados, said Sabu meteorological service. Forecasters then expect the storm to cross the Caribbean on a path toward Jamaica and eventually Mexico.On Saturday night, Beryl was centred about 1,060 kilometres eastsoutheast of Barbados, with maximum sustained winds of 130 kph. UK's Labour Party vows to in bid to woo community

World In a bid to win back the Indian community, the Labour Party, the UK's opposition party, has committed itself to eliminating anti-India sentiments within its ranks and constructing a strong strategic partnership with Prime Minister

Narendra Modi-led government. The party made the commitment while it hopes to dislodge the Rishi Sunak-led Conservatives and form the international intervention into the Kashmir issue

during an annual conference under former leader

Jeremy Corbyn was widely believed to have led to a loss of British Indian votes for the party in the Gaza ceasefire talks stall as Israel not ready to end war, says Hamas

Cairo. A senior official of the militant Islamist group Hamas, Osama Hamdan, said on Saturday there has been no progress in ceasefire talks with Israel over the Gaza war.The Palestinian group is still ready to "deal positively with any ceasefire proposal that ends the war, Hamdan told a news conference in Beirut.Arab mediators' efforts, backed by the United States, have so far failed to conclude a ceasefire, with both sides blaming each other for the impasse. Hamas says any deal must end the war and bring full Israeli withdrawal from Gaza, while Israel says it will accept only temporary pauses in fighting until Hamas, which has ruled Gaza since is eradicated.Hamdan also blamed the United States for applying pressure on Hamas to accept Israel's conditions."Once again, Hamas is ready to deal positively with any proposal that secures a permanent ceasefire, a comprehensive withdrawal from Gaza Strip and a serious swap deal," said Hamdan, referring to a potential swap of hostages held in Gaza for Palestinians in Israeli prisons.

When Hamas-led militants stormed into than 250 hostage, according to Israeli tallies.The Israeli offensive in retaliation has so far killed nearly 38,000 people, according to the Gaza health ministry, and has left the heavily built-up coastal enclave in ruins. The Gaza health ministry does not distinguish between combatants and non-combatants but officials say most of the dead are civilians. Israel has lost more than 300 soldiers in Gaza and says at least a third of the Palestinian dead are fighters.Palestinian health officials said Israeli military strikes across the enclave had so far killed at least 35 people and wounded others on Saturday. The Israeli military on Saturday announced the death f two soldiers killed in combat in northern Gaza, as Israeli forces pressed on with an offensive in the Shejaia neighbourhood in Gaza City.Residents said tanks advanced deeper into several districts including the area around the local market and there was heavy fire from the air and the ground.

The armed wing of Hamas and the allied Islamic Jihad reported fierce fighting, saying fighters fired anti-tank rockets and mortar bombs against the forces around 1,200 people and seized more operating there. The Israeli military said dozens of Palestinian gunmen were killed over the past two days in close quarters combat and airstrikes in Shejaia, after forces encircled what it described as a civilian area converted by Hamas into a militant compound.

In the area, the troops located observation posts, weapons, enemy drones and a long-range rocket launcher near the schools," the military said in a statement. Hamas has denied assertions that it operates in civilian areas such as schools and hospitals.ore than eight months into Israel's air and ground war in Gaza, militants continued to stage attacks on Israeli forces, operating in areas that the Israeli army said it had gained control over months ago.Israeli leaders have said in the past week that the intense phase of the war is approaching its end, and that the next stage of the offensive will mainly be smaller-scale operations meant to stop Hamas from reassembling. Meanwhile Israeli forces operating in several districts in Rafah, in the southern Gaza Strip, killed several Palestinians and forced families living in the far western edge of the city along the coastal areas to head northwards, according to in response to a question posed by news agency PTI on winning back Indian diaspora voters alienated in the last polls."If there is any evidence of that (anti-India sentiment), whichever group of people, I will do something about that," she stated.Dodds appealed to the "incredible diaspora" community to "furnish details" of any Labour members who could jeopardise India-UK ties under a future Labour government. 'Going beyond warm words, we want to build that practical, strong relationship. Labour has talked a lot about a strategic partnership with India that covers trade. But we want to see cooperation in other areas as well, such as new technologies, the environment and security," she said.

From the Conservatves's side, Felicity Buchan, Minister at the Department for Levelling Up, Housing and Communities, highlighted the party's pro-India track record and having a Prime Minister of Indian heritage in Rishi Sunak

'I think that the relationship with India is incredibly important. The diaspora that we have in the UK adds so much to our life here in the UK," said Buchan, who is the party candidate for Kensington and Bayswater in London.

We have very strong historic and cultural ties, but there is so much to be done going forward. We are negotiating a free trade agreement (FTA) at the

France to vote in historic snap polls, far-right likely to replace Macron

Paris. However, the electoral system can make it hard to estimate the precise distribution of seats in the 577-seat National Assembly, and the final outcome will not be known until the end of voting on July 7."We are going to win an absolute majority," said Le Pen in a newspaper interview on Wednesday, predicting that her protégé, 28-year-old Jordan Bardella would be prime minister. Her party has a highspending economic programme and seeks to reduce immigration. If the RN does win an absolute majority, French diplomacy could be headed for an unprecedented period of turbulence: with Macron - who has said he will continue his presidency until the end of his term in 2027 - and Bardella jostling for the right to speak for France.France has had three periods of "cohabitation" - when the president and government are from opposite political camps - in its post-war history, but none with such radically divergent world views competing at the top of the state.

Bardella has already indicated he would challenge Macron on global issues. France could lurch from being a pillar of the EU to a thorn in its side, demanding a rebate of the French contribution to the EU budget, clashing with Brussels over European Commission jobs and reversing Macron's calls for greater EU unity and assertiveness on defence. A clear RN victory would also bring uncertainty as to where France stands on the Russia-Ukraine war. Le Pen has a history of pro-Russian sentiment and while the party now says it would help Ukraine defend itself against Russian invaders, it has also set out red lines, such as refusing to provide long-range missiles. 'SPLIT VOTE FAVOURS RN'

Opinion polls have suggested the RN has a comfortable lead of 33-36% of the popular vote, with a hastily assembled left-wing coalition, the New Popular Front, in second place on 28-31% and Macron's centrist alliance in third on 20-23%. The New Popular Front includes a wide range of parties, from the moderate centre-left to the hard-left, eurosceptic, anti-NATO party France

Iran to hold runoff election after historic low turnout in presidential polls

Dubai. Iran will hold a runoff presidential election pitting a little-known reformist against a hard-line former nuclear negotiator after results released Saturday showed the lowest-ever poll turnout in the Islamic Republic's history. More than 60 per cent of voters cast no ballot in the race that saw reformist Masoud Pezeshkian best Saeed Jalili, who competed alongside two other hard-liners. With Jalili now alone in facing the cardiac surgeon, Pezeshkian's campaign would need to draw voters to the July 5 runoff in an election they've otherwise not taken part in as public anger hardens following years of Iran facing economic hardships and mass protests under its Shiite theocracy."Let's look at it as a protest in its own right: A very widespread choice to reject what's on offer – both the candidates and the system," said Sanam Vakil, the director of Chatham House's Middle East and North Africa program. "That tells us a lot about public opinion and apathy, frustration. It sort of brings it all together."Of the 24.5 million votes cast in Friday's election, Pezeshkian got 10.4 million while Jalili received 9.4 million, election spokesman Mohsen Eslami announced. Parliament speaker Mohammad Bagher Qalibaf got 3.3 million, while Shitte cleric Mostafa

Pourmohammadi had over 206,000 votes. Iranian law requires that a winner gets more than 50 per cent of all votes cast. If not, the race's top two candidates advance to a runoff a week later. There's been only one other runoff presidential election in Iran's history: in 2005, when hard-liner Mahmoud Ahmadinejad bested former President Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani. As has been the case since the 1979 Islamic Revolution, women and those calling for radical change have been barred from running, while the vote itself will have no oversight from internationally recognised monitors. There were signs of the wider disenchantment of the public with the vote. More than 1 million votes were voided, according to the results, typically a sign of people feeling obligated to cast a ballot but not wanting to select any of the candidates. The overall turnout was 39.9 per cent, according to the results. The 2021 presidential election that elected Raisi saw a 48.8 per cent turnout, while the March parliamentary election saw a

40.6 per cent turnout. There had been calls

Nobel Peace Prize laureate Narges

of the leaders of the 2009 Green house arrest, has also refused to vote along with his wife, his daughter said. here's also been criticism that Pezeshkian represents just another governmentapproved candidate. In a documentary on the reformist candidate aired by state TV, one woman said her generation was "moving toward the same level" of animosity with the government that Pezeshkian's generation had in the 1979 revolution. Jalili, once described by CIA director Bill Burns as "stupefyingly opaque" in negotiations, likely would have won outright had the three hard-liners not split Friday's vote Jalili is liners not split Friday's vote. Jalili is known as the "Living Martyr" after losing a leg in the 1980s Iran-Iraq war and is famous among Western diplomats for his haranguing lectures and hard-line stances. Qalibaf, a former general in Iran's paramilitary Revolutionary Guard and head of Iran's police, had been thought to have a wider power base, despite being plagued by corruption allegations and his role in past violent crackdowns. He quickly endorsed Jalili in conceding the result and criticised Pezeshkian for allying himself with President Hassan Rouhani and his former foreign minister, Mohammad Javad Zarif The two reached Iran's 2015 nuclear deal with world powers, which later collapsed after then-President Donald Trump unilaterally withdrew from the accord."The road is not over yet, and despite the fact that I respect Mr. Dr. Pezeshkian personally, ... I ask all the revolutionary forces and my supporters to help stop the wave that is causing an important part of our economic and political problems today," Qalibaf said in a statement. Now the question becomes whether Pezeshkian will be able to draw voters into his campaign. On Election Day, he offered comments on outreach to the West after voting seemingly aimed at drumming up turnout for his campaigneven after being targeted by a veiled warning from Supreme Leader Ayatollah

Multi-Crore bridge collapse in Giridih; plunges into river Arga

RNS: Giridih: A bridge under construction spanning the Arga River in Deori block of Giridih district, Jharkhand, has collapsed, sending shockwaves through the local community. The incident occurred at Kariphari village along the Fatehpur-Bhelwaghati road, where the structure's girder broke under unexpected circumstances.

Constructed at a cost of five and a half crores by the Road Construction Department and contracted to Om Namah Shivay construction company, the bridge's collapse has sparked concerns about safety and construction standards. Despite the monsoon season not yet officially beginning, heavy rains triggered a surge in the river's water level, leading to the catastrophic failure on Saturday evening. Eyewitnesses described a loud noise as one of the bridge's supporting pillars succumbed to the force of the river, causing the girder to plunge into the water below. Another pillar also suffered significant damage during the downpour

Authorities, including local administration teams, promptly responded to the scene to assess the extent of the damage and provide necessary assistance. The collapse has prompted immediate investigations into the construction methods and safety protocols employed during the project. Officials are currently conducting inquiries to determine the exact cause of the collapse, emphasizing the need for stringent measures in future construction endeavors to prevent such incidents from recurring.

Expected 85 marks out of 100, got 75: Shah on LS poll result

New Delhi: Union Home Minister Amit Shah Saturday Shah said they should have no doubts that the BJP will lashed out at the Congress and accused it of trying to hide its defeat in the Lok Sabha polls by spreading confusion among people."We expected 85 marks out of 100 but got 75 and Congressmen are calling us

Lalu Yadav's 'Indira Gandhi never abused us' remark on Emergency draws BJP's ire

New Delhi:Rashtriya Janata Dal (RJD) supremo and former Bihar chief minister Lalu Prasad Yadav's remark on the dark days of Emergency seem to have drawn a sharp criticism by the BJP. In an article titled 'The Sangh Silence in 1975', the RJD patriarch had said that former Prime Minister Indira Gandhi imprisoned several political leaders but "never abused" them. Sharing an excerpt from the article on X, the RJD chief said that despite 1975 being a stain on the nation's democracy, let's not forget who doesn't respect the opposition in 2024."I was the convener of the steering committee that Jayaprakash Narayan had constituted to carry forward the movement against the excesses of emergency imposed by the then PM Indira Gandhi. I was in jail under the Maintenance of Security Act (MISA) for over 15 months. My colleagues and I did not know many of the BJP ministers speaking about the emergency today. Guv poser for Hemant's return, Champai Soren likely to continue as CM till Jharkhand Assembly polls

Jamshedpur: A day after Hemant Soren's release from jail on bail, loyalist Champai Soren continues to remain Jharkhand chief minister with speculation mounting on what is preventing his predecessor from reclaiming his throne. Officially, Jharkhand Mukti Morcha sources said Champai had offered to step down on Friday evening itself but was dissuaded by Hemant, who is "likely to decide next week" whether to take over from Champai or let him continue till the Assembly elections later this year. Off the record, the sources said Hemant may be apprehensive about effecting a change of chief ministers now and thereby bringing into play a Raj Bhavan with which the JMM government has a trust deficit. Ranchi-based political columnist Faisal Anurag, who has had a close association with Hemant and his father and party patriarch Shibu Soren, spelled out the reason why he believes Hemant might allow Champai to remain chief minister till the polls.

'As far as my political understanding goes, I don't see Hemant becoming chief minister in July," he said. Anurag cited how Hemant had on Saturday morning suggested the BJP-led Centre might advance the Jharkhand Assembly polls, due in December, to hold it simultaneously with elections in Haryana and Maharashtr, expected in October-November."If the Jharkhand elections are held early in October-November, the Model Code of Conduct (MCC) would likely be enforced from September," Anurag said."There will be barely two months (July and August) left for proper government functioning (or launching welfare schemes). Hemant, aware of the present stance of the governors in the country, would not risk allowing Champai to resign and staking claim himself," he added. "Because, there will always be the prospect of the governor delaying the process (of Hemant being sworn in) without citing reasons, which might keep the government in limbo in the run-

Under the rules, Champai has to tender his resignation to governor C.P. Radhakrishnan, and Hemant has to furnish a letter to the governor showing the support of enough MLAs and staking claim to become chief minister. The JMM, however, has history with the governor on this count.

Kejriwal government forms committee to investigate illegal tree felling by DDA

New Delhi: In response to the illegal felling of 1,100 trees by the Delhi Development Authority (DDA) in South Delhi's Reserve Forest Area, the Kejriwal government convened a cabinet meeting on Saturday. Despite health issues, Cabinet Minister Atishi participated online. In the meeting, all the ministers unanimously decided to constitute a three-minister Fact-Finding Committee, comprising ministers Saurabh Bharadwaj, Atishi, and Imran Hussain, to investigate the orders behind the tree cutting. The Supreme Court is currently addressing this case, demanding accountability. Communications between some DDA engineers suggest that the trees were cut on verbal orders from the Lieutenant Governor (LG) after he visited the Ridge area. The government has repeatedly sought a status report from the Forest Department, but it remains unreceived. In a press conference with cabinet ministers Saurabh Bharadwaj and Imran Hussain, Environment Minister Gopal Rai said that the Kejriwal government is very serious about protecting the people of Delhi from pollution and natural calamities like heat waves. For this, continuous work is being done to increase the green belt in Delhi.The Delhi Environment Minister continued, stating, that in the last assembly elections, CM Arvind Kejriwal had given 10 guarantees to Delhiites. One of these guarantees was that the green area in Delhi will be increased by planting 2 crore saplings within 5 years. We are happy that in collaboration with all the agencies working in Delhi, we have achieved the target of planting 2 crore saplings in just 4 years. People's concern has further increased after the heat wave this year. In view of this, the government has decided to plant 64 lakh saplings in the next financial year in collaboration with all agencies.

Minister Gopal Rai mentioned, "A shocking incident has come to light from Chhatarpur, Satbari in Delhi that in February, the DDA violated all the rules and cut 1,100 trees without permission from any agency or government. The hearing of this case is going on in the Supreme Court. The court is repeatedly asking the Vice Chairperson of DDA on whose orders 1,100 trees were cut illegally in the capital Delhi.""The Apex court is asking whether this order was given by the LG because the communication of some DDA engineers shows that the LG had visited the forest reserve area of Chhatarpur and these trees were cut on his verbal orders. The Supreme Court wants to know the truth behind this. The court has asked the Vice Chairman of DDA to file his reply by the next hearing. Also, in the hearing of June 26, the Supreme Court had asked the Forest Department to file its status report," he stated.

Union Minister Smells 'Conspiracy' In Bihar Bridge Collapse, Says After Lok Sabha Polls...

Union Minister Jitan Ram Manjhi has responded to the bridge collapsing issue in Bihar by raising the possibility of a conspiracy behind the incidents.

New Delhi: As the frequent reports of bridge collapses in Bihar are raising concerns among residents about the quality of development work in the state, now, Union Minister Jitan Ram Manjhi, also former Bihar Chief Minister, has responded to the issue by raising the possibility of a conspiracy behind the incidents. In the past nine days, five bridges in Araria, Siwan, East Champaran, Kishanganj, and Madhubani districts of have collapsed in Bihar. Reflecting on the matter, Minister of Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises, Manjhi on Saturday asserted that poor-quality materials might have been used but why these collapses did not occur earlier, asking if there could be a conspiracy behind the recent incidents. "It is a matter of concern that bridges are collapsing (in Bihar). It looks as if poor-quality material might have been used. But why were the bridges not collapsing before 15 days or a month ago? Why are they collapsing now? Is there a conspiracy behind it?" Manjhi said while addressing the media. The MSME minister was talking to media when he suggested that the repeated bridge collapses could be a deliberate effort to discredit and tarnish the reputation the government. Claiming there to be a motive behind these events, he said, "These things are being done on purpose to tarnish the image of the government. Bridges are collapsing continuously, I think there is intention behind this." The Union Minister affirmed that the government is implementing stringent actions against the contractors and engineers accountable for the bridge collapses.

Chronological Order Of Recent Bridge Collapses In Bihar

The series of bridge collapses began on June 18 in Araria, where a newly constructed bridge over the Bakra River collapsed before its inauguration. Subsequently, another collapse occurred on June 22 over the Gandak River in Siwan, a bridge that had been standing for approximately 40-45 years. The incidents continued with a collapse on June 23 of a bridge under construction in East Champaran, where locals attributed the failure to the use of inferior materials. On the following day, another bridge fell in Kishanganj. The most recent collapse took place in Madhubani, occurring just a day after the Kishanganj incident. Notably, last year in June, a temporary bridge on the River Ganga in Vaishali suffered partial collapse due to strong winds, connecting Raghopur to the Vaishali District Headquarters.

Indian Muslims on shaky ground

I am an ardent admirer of Harsh Mander, a former IAS officer who resigned in 2002 in protest against the Gujarat government's failure to do its Raj Dharma of curbing the massacre of innocent Muslims. I do not have the courage Harsh has. I never had that level of courage. He recently informed his myriad admirers that his new article was on the subject of "the political demonisation, erasure and abandonment of Indian Muslims in recent elections". He aptly called it "the crisis of not-belonging". An incident that occurred on polling day in Uttar Pradesh last month caught my attention. An educated Muslim girl arrived at a polling booth along with her sister. The officials on duty went through the voter list and informed the girls that their names were not on it.

The girl who reported this incident had earlier gone to the centre concerned for checking the voter list. Her name and that of her sister were there. She demanded a re-check, which the officials did. Their names were on the list. The girls voted, as was their right and their duty. They were educated girls, confident of their own capabilities.

On emerging from the polling station, she found groups of burqa-clad women who had been told that they could not vote as their names were not on the list. They were not smart like our girl to call their bluff. The BJP knew that minority votes would go against them. It was rumoured that it used different means to ensure victory. Yet, in BJP-ruled UP, it failed.

The Election Commission of India (ECI) should have acted on the courageous girl's complaint and investigated such electoral misdemeanours. The ECI wields sole authority over officials of any government department on election duty. It should have identified the culprits and put them on the mat. It should also have published details of the action taken against them.I agree with Harsh that Indian Muslims are on shaky ground after the BJP-led NDA government assumed office. The BJP's propaganda team may deny this so that the party's back is covered and the Western powers with whom we now seem to be aligned think kindly of our government. But there is much that the community itself can do to change its own image. Indian Muslims are not the target of only the Modi-Shah government but also the victims of its own narrow-minded religious establishment.It is really sad to see that innumerable Muslim women are kept deliberately backward and treated as possessions in India. I am talking specifically of uneducated women in families living in penury. I have many Muslim friends, but they belong to the privileged, well-heeled category who will think like I do and approach life as I would.Presently, I am watching a Turkish serial called Black Money Love. Women in that Islamic country are totally liberated following the reforms introduced by Mustafa Kemal Ataturk. In India, the community needs to start internal reforms. First and foremost, it should ensure that all its women become literate. It should also ensure that they are well educated and able to think for themselves. Kerala has achieved 100 per cent literacy. It has thereby succeeded in controlling the reproduction rate.

The BJP's main accusation against the Congress was, and still is, that the community was pampered by the party for votes. In what aspects of their life were Muslims pampered? It was only the religious dispensation that was pampered, ensuring that obscurantist practices were perpetuated. The Shah Bano judgment overturned by an ill-advised Prime Minister spelt the end of Congress primacy in India. It shocked the conscience of citizens like me, who nurtured no biases.Poor Muslims, both menand women, remain as helpless and deprived today as they were then. Strong leaders should emerge in the community to challenge the fatwas of the mullahs. Like the mullah who ordered the wife of a soldier missing in action for seven years — who re-married and became a mother in his absence to return to her previous husband when the Pakistanis released him from captivity. The woman was not consulted! She was a mere

Marginal tax cuts not enough to spur robust economic growth

Economists do not feel that there is any policy objective among decision-makers to reduce economic inequality.

THE Union Government is considering what it has not done for over half a dozen years now. In the full Budget for 2024-25 due in late July, it may end up cutting taxes amounting to Rs 50,000 crore so that those not so well-off can get to pay less by way of taxes and consequently spend more by way of raising consumption.

One way of doing this is introducing a new beneficial income tax slab. Another step can be raising grants for small farmers as well as allocating more government funds for the rural employment programme, which will help both male and female rural workers. The overall picture is that even as the GDP has been doing well over the last few years, private consumption has not kept pace. After the Covid-19 pandemic subsided, the GDP growth rate hovered at around 8 per cent till 2023-24. But private consumption, after growing through state largesse at the rate of over 10 per cent in 2021-22, slumped to around half that figure in 2023-24. But for the Budget as a whole, the government needs to do much more than just lower a few taxes. According to an expert, around 20 million more jobs will be needed. The Budget can help take things forward in four ways. As there are fewer jobs available in rural areas, there will have to be well-planned, sustainable cities with enough jobs to absorb the people coming in from villages in search of work. The Budget will also have to help boost large-scale manufacturing. The key will be more funds by way of the production-linked incentive scheme, which encourages global companies to bring in manufacturing plants that both create more skilled jobs and use the higher production for domestic consumption as well as exports. Additionally, information technology companies will create new jobs for engineers and fetch services exports. These engineers will spend and contribute to indirect taxes. Some of these points have been raised by business representatives in their meeting with the Finance Minister while offering ideas on putting together the forthcoming Budget. A somewhat new proposal will be to raise capital expenditure in rural areas so that there is more irrigation, warehousing and cold chains. This will raise agricultural output and bring down inflation, thus allowing the economy to go further through greater government expenditure without pushing up inflation.

As much as the corporate leaders have their focus on their own businesses, they have also shared ideas with the government to focus on micro, small and medium enterprises (MSMEs). These will feed into the larger businesses and help them grow further.

Though the government has had some good ideas (cutting a bit of taxes) and the corporates have passed on a few more, it needs to focus on a cardinal reality that is yet to be addressed — the stark economic inequality in the country. Even though India's stock markets remain one of the costliest in the world, the government finds that it needs to keep delivering free foodgrains to 800 million of the 1.4 billion people in the country to keep hunger at bay. According to a survey by Reuters, economists feel that the youth, who are already suffering from unemployment, are not optimistic about things getting any better in the next five years.

conomists do not feel that there is any policy objective among decision-makers to reduce economic inequality. And a critical point for some of them is that inequality will not go away on its own through overall rapid economic growth, which is happening right now.

However, some experts feel that inequality in itself is not a cause for concern. What is important is that those at the bottom of the pyramid should fare better economically. Those at the top doing much better is not an issue.

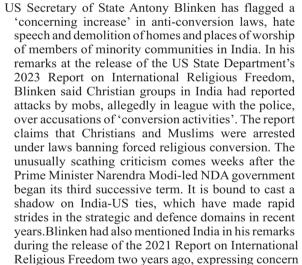

The sharp differences among economists is highlighted by certain contradictions. India has the second-highest number of billionaires in Asia, while tens of millions of people scrape by with a daily wage of around Rs 400 earned through digging wells and country roads, making money 100 days a year. Some economists, with the upcoming Budget in mind, feel that the key concern should not be to visualise the country becoming a developed economy by 2047 or in around a quarter century. What is more important is for workers to have better skills so that they have more jobs and become a part of an overall inclusive growth. Ninety per cent of the economists polled felt that unemployment would remain the biggest problem for the next five years. The way to solve this would be to move from farm to factory. But what stands in the way is the failure to invest adequately in education. The country spends 3 per cent of the GDP on public education, even though the National Education Policy recommends 6 per cent.

In view of all this, it is perhaps necessary for both the government and business leaders to move away from issues regarding marginal changes in taxes and investments. Instead, it is imperative to focus on what matters so that the country has workers who are able to run more modern factories. The share of manufacturing in the GDP has remained in the range of 15-17 per cent for about 30 years. If there is a saving grace, it is the rise in services delivering information technology, led by top software companies. The key policy that made it possible was the creation of software technology parks in the early 1990s and the waiver of income tax on IT export earnings. Right now, the US is the leading enabler of Indian exports, led by the delivery of services. The government will be shortsighted if it tries to overcome the setback in the recent elections by looking at standalone decisions like reducing a bit of tax here or there. The 2024-25 Budget needs to have a broad goal, which the government of the early 1990s did. The way to begin today is to reform the public education system, aided by greater government spending.

Minority report

US criticism of India can have repercussions over rising attacks on people and places of worship in the country. However, his comments this time may be seen through the prism of the US presidential elections, which are scheduled for November. With Christians accounting for two-thirds of the American population, highlighting alleged atrocities against them in countries such as India could be construed as a vote-catching tactic. While talking about the minorities in the US, Blinken has confined himself to the observation that reports of hate crimes and other incidents targeting Muslims and Jews have gone up dramatically. America seems more keen to 'advance religious freedom across the globe' than to set its own house in order. The Indian government does need to do course correction on the minority front, but it won't appreciate the US playing the Big Brother. Antagonising a close ally will have repercussions for Washington, especially when the Gurpatwant Singh Pannun case is already testing the strength and maturity of the bilateral relations.

Military stranglehold taking its toll on Pakistan

The public of Pakistan needs to realise that the India-centric approach of the army has only hastened the country's slide.

SINCE 1947, India and Pakistan have fought four wars, including the one in 1971, when East Pakistan broke away with Indian assistance and became Bangladesh. They have opposed each other at every international forum, acquired nuclear weapons to gain strategic superiority and joined alliances to seek territorial and diplomatic advantage. To make up for its smaller size, Pakistan has not hesitated from using the communal card in a bid to destabilise India time and again and "bleed India with a thousand cuts" with its proxy war in J&K since 1989. Members of terrorist groups such as Lashkar-e-Taiba, Harkat-ul-Ansar and Hizbul Mujahideen continue to be trained and infiltrated into India for carrying out terrorist activities and creating destabilisation. As things stand, this situation is unlikely to change anytime soon.

During this entire period, through the shrill cacophony of revenge, there have been sane voices from both sides suggesting better relations between the two and progressing together in peaceful co-existence. Why these efforts have not produced the desired results, thus prolonging the status quo, needs to be analysed. In the current geopolitical environment, a continuing hostile stance between the two is likely to prove harmful to both, more so to Pakistan, due to its vulnerabilities.

Unlike in India, where a democratically elected government conducts foreign policy with all countries, including Pakistan, the civilian government in Pakistan must go by the wishes of the army while dealing with India. This creates a dichotomous situation wherein a clandestine hand seems to be controlling the outcome of direct talks. The Pakistan army has ruled the country directly or indirectly for the past 77 years. Not having been popular while ruling the country directly, the army has conveniently indulged in back-seat driving by making the 'selected' government do its bidding. This ensures that it gets credit for all the good deeds, while unpopular decisions are attributed to the civilian government.

The army has maintained its position within the polity by branding India as Pakistan's enemy No.1 in people's minds while projecting itself as the saviour of the nation. It is not uncommon to find that for most things going wrong in Pakistan, India is generally the whipping boy. The army is adept at orchestrating an anti-India agenda from the background. The only negative aspect of such a game plan is that it cannot be played perpetually, thus exposing the perpetrators. Punjabis have invariably dominated the government and all its important wings, even at the expense of depriving others of their fair share of government jobs. Thus, there is a strong undercurrent of resentment and alienation among Sindhis, Baluchis and Pakhtoons, giving a fillip to divisiveness. With the passage of time, this faultline is becoming more prominent. The army has gradually expanded its overall control to almost all institutions in the country. The Fauji Foundation has been activated to control some of the economic activities. Recent reports of pressurising and threatening the judiciary to get favourable decisions for the 'establishment' have pointed to the subversion of judicial processes. Manipulation of the religious discourse to suit the aspirations of the military has resulted in creation of a suspicious and untrustworthy environment wherein the friction between the Shias and Sunnis has increased manifold. In fact, the minority Shias have been targeted more frequently by the Sunnis lately, thus heightening the discord.

There is also a feeling of alienation in the lower and middle ranks of the Pakistan army, especially since most spoils of power are being shared at the higher levels. It is this disenchantment that Imran Khan tried to exploit while taking on the army when he was the Prime Minister. His failure, of course, does not change the ground reality.

On the Indian side, the foreign policy of the country is the responsibility of the democratically elected government of India. Principally, it would be happy to have cordial neighbourly relations with Pakistan. Several past prime ministers of India have repeatedly shown their positive intent on this account. Negotiations have broken down either because of the last-minute pressure from the Pak army on their government or because of Pakistan going back on the agreed upon agreements. The Simla Agreement of 1972 is a glaring example.

The solution lies in weakening of the stranglehold of the army on the foreign policy of Pakistan vis-à-vis India. The public of the country needs to realise that the Indiacentric approach propagated and followed by the army has only hastened Pakistan's slide. It is the inherent contradictions within the Pakistan polity, propped up and manipulated by the army, that are leading the country towards disintegration.

The moot question that arises is whether the military can be forced to jettison its prime position to stop Pakistan's abysmal march to doomsday. There are murmurs of discontentment and unhappiness within Pakistan, especially since most aspects are weighed in comparison with India. The high-handed way the 'establishment' deals with all other institutions of the state is becoming clearer. Ultimately, it is the public in Pakistan that can bring about an end to the army's domination. Nurturing and encouraging this thought process would help build a case for the long-term wellbeing of Pakistan as well as better relations with India.

Friendliness between India and Pakistan is possible only once acts inimical to each other are stopped. Pakistan needs to stop supporting the proxy war in J&K and terrorist activities in other parts of India. Resolution of other issues, including J&K, can happen as trust and confidence between the two builds up. In the long term, good neighbourly relations would benefit both countries.

मुंह के छालों से राहत पाने के लिए अपनाएं ये 4 नुस्खें

आजकल मुंह में छाले होना एक आम समस्या हो गई है। पुरूषों के मुकाबले यह समस्या ज्यादातर महिलाओं में अधिक होती है। इसका मुख्य कारण उनके हारमोन्स में अधिक उतार-चढाव आना है। यह छाले अपने आप ही कुछ दिनों में ठीक हो जाते हैं। इनके निकलने के कई कारण हो सकते हैं।

पेट के साफ न होने और खाना खाते समय अचानक दांतों से मुंह के अंदर की झिल्ली के कट जाने से छाले हो जाते हैं। मासिक धर्म या मेनापॉज के सामय हारमोन्स में बदलाव तथा वायरस, बैक्टीरिया या फंगस संक्रमण से निकल सकते हैं। इसके अन्य कारणें में शरीर की रोग-प्रतिरोधक क्षमता कम होना, एलर्जी होना भोजन में विटामिन सी और बी 12 की कमी होना आदि शामिल हैं। कुछ दवाओं के साइड इफेक्ट के रूप में भी मुंह में छाले निकल सकते हैं।

बचाव के उपाय

- खाना धीरे-धरी चबा-चबा कर खाएं। खाते समय बात न करें, ताकि दांतों से मुंह के अंदर की परत को नुकसान न पहुंचे।
- नींबू को आधा काटें, इसे छाले पर लगाएं, इससे थोडी जलन तो होगी, परंतु यह सुन्न हो जाएगा, जो अच्छा है । आखिर में थोडा शहद छाले पर लगाएं ।
- शरीर की सफाई, संतुलित भोजन और पीने के साफ पानी पर भी विशेष ध्यान
- कुछ दिनों तक लगातर विटामिन सी और विटामिन बी 12 की गोलियां खाएं। माउथवाश का प्रयोग करें – कई बार कुल्ला करने से यह आपके मुख में बढने वाले जीवाणुओं को साफ करता है और इसके साथ–साथ कई मामलों में छाले में दर्द से राहत देता है। किसी बिना नुस्खा घोल का उपयोग करें, कोई भी माउथवाश इस प्रयोजन के लिए कार्यकारी है। सुबह और शाम कुल्ला करें और हो सके तो दिन के खाने के बाद भी कुल्ला करें।

India will win many trophies in next 5-6 years: Rahul Dravid after happy ending as coach

New Delhi. Rahul Dravid backed India to win several trophies in the coming years. Dravid finished his career as the head coach on a high after the Men in Blue won the T20 World Cup 2024 title. On Saturday, June 29, India beat Aiden Markram's South Africa by 7 runs at the Kensington Oval in Bridgetown, Barbados and ended their 11-year-long wait to win an ICC title.Dravid took charge of the Indian team from November 2021 after Ravi Shastri stepped down. Under his tenure, India finished as the runners-up in the World Test Championship last year and the ODI World Cup. However, after a couple of disappointing finishes in 2023, Dravid and his men got their hands on the coveted T20 World Cup trophy. There is fantastic talent in the Indian cricket team. Their energy and confidence is on another level at this time. In the coming times, India will win so many trophies, in the next 5-6 years. This was a journey of 2 years. The construction of this team and the kind of skills we wanted, the players we wanted. The discussions started when I started in 2021 and this is not the work of just this World Cup, It feels like a journey of 2 years," Dravid said after the match.

'Been a great journey'

Back in 2003, Dravid missed out on winning the World Cup after India lost to Australia in the final. 4 years later, in 2007, India failed to go beyond the league stage. In 2018, he won the U19 World Cup with the Indian team in New Zealand back in 2018."As a player, I was not lucky enough to win a trophy but I gave my best...I was lucky enough to be given an opportunity to coach a team, I was lucky that this bunch of boys made it possible for me to be able to win this trophy. It is a great feeling, it is not like I was aiming for some redemption, it was the job I was doing...it has been a great journey," Dravid

Kapil Dev 1983, Suryakumar Yadav 2024: Two unforgettable World Cup final catches

New Delhi. The Indian cricket team began a new chapter in their cricketing history as they won the T20 World Cup 2024 on Saturday, June 29 at Kensington Oval, Bridgetown, Barbados. The Men in Blue beat South Africa by seven runs in the summit clash to clinch their second T20 World Cup trophy. The victory brought an end to their 11-year-long ICC Trophy drought as the Asian Giants last tasted glory in 2013 by winning the Champions Trophy.However, the dream once again seemed to be diminished as Heinrich Klaasen brought South Africa on the verge of the win by launching a 24-run assault against Axar Patel. Just when the match seemed to be running away from India, Hardik Pandya dismissed the dangerous Klaasen making him edge one to wicketkeeper Rishabh Pant. However, with David Miller at the crease, the Proteas still breathed easy, given his finishing prowess. The southpaw seemed determined to take the game away as he hit the first ball towards long off. With the ball travelling in the air, everybody had their hearts in their mouths but the calm head of Suryakumar Yadav at the long off boundary helped him take one of the greatest catches ever under pressure. The 33-year-old took hold of the ball and got rid of it immediately with the momentum taking him over the fence. However, he quickly jumped back in and completed one the greatest catches ever in the history of ICC events. Courtesy of his Herculean effort, India managed to pull things back and Kapil Dev's catch from 1983 World Cup

New Delhi. South African captain Aiden Markram lauded the Indian team for finally crossing the final hurdle and lifting the trophy. Team India created history as they won the ICC T20 World Cup 2024 trophy at the Kensington Oval, Barbados on June 30, Saturday. It was a 'gut-wrenching' loss for South Africa, who fell short by just 7 runs to lift their maiden World Cup trophy. The Proteas had made it to their first-ever World Cup final.

South Africa were on the verge of shedding the 'chokers' tag, but the Indian bowlers staged one of the most dramatic comebacks in the history of the T20 World Cup final. South Africa were cruising in the chase as they needed just 30 runs in the last 30 balls. However, Hardik Pandya picked the wicket of Heinrich Klaasen and the equation came to 16 needed off the last over. India managed to defend the total of 176 runs and win the title. While addressing the post-match pressconference, Markram said that they came a step closer this time and will look to lift their first-ever title the next time.

'Hopefully it's one step closer. It's tournament cricket, it's tough cricket, it's not easy to win trophies and you've got to take your hats off to a team like India for lifting the trophy. A lot of hard work goes into it. But yeah, we'd like to think we're one step closer and hopefully moving forward we can get that first win and it can be a snowball effect of quite a few to come," Markram said.

India creates history

The Proteas captain was 'gutted' with the loss and admitted that the total was chaseable. He was proud of the team for how they batted as well as bowled."Gutted for the time being. It'll take some time for us to have a really good reflection on a really good campaign the group had. Obviously, for the time being, like I mentioned, it hurts quite a bit. Having said that, I'm incredibly proud of this group of players and everyone involved with the team. I feel they bowled well. Don't think there was a whole lot to work with regards to the pitch. Thought we did well to restrict them to what we thought was a chaseable total. Thought we batted really well as well, and it came down to the wire," Markram said in the post-match presentation.
